Reply Expected Over
Week-End

BLANK REFUSAL NOT EXPECTED

London, Yesterday.

The reply of the German Government to the proposals contained in the four-Power agreement will, it is expected, be received in London during the week-end and the British Foreign Secretary has informed the chief German delegate, Herr von Ribbentrop, that he will be at his disposal for consultations if required. Since Herr von Ribbentrop's arrival in London he has had three interviews with Mr. Eden and further consultation will, it is understood, take place at the Foreign Office to-day.

The Daily Telegraph says that Herr von Ribbentrop, who, it is understood, has been in frequent telephonic communication with Berlin since the text of the agreement among the other Locarno Powers had been received there, may find it necessary to fly to Berlin to make a personal report to the Chancellor before the terms of the reply are finally drafted. Other reports state that the reply may be available in London late this afternoon.

INCITEMENT TO CRIME

Newspaper Magnates
Sentenced

Paris, Yesterday. M. Maurras has been sentenced to four months' imprisonment for incitement to crime. M. Delest has been fined 100 francs.—Reuter.

A message dated February 16 stated that M. Charles Maurras, Director of l'Action Francaise, and M. Joseph Delest, Manager of the newspaper, had been charged by the examining magistrate with incitement to murder arising out of a newspaper article.

The charge followed swiftly on the attack of the Camelots du Roi on M. Leon Blum, but the article did not name M. Blum or any others.

BRITISH AUTHOR PASSES

Buenos Aires, Yesterday. — The death has occurred of the author, Cunningham Graham.—Reuter.

GERMANY HAS KEY TO PEACE

FUTURE RELATIONS
AT STAKE

NEGATIVE REPLY MOST PROBABLE

London, Yesterday.

All England is eagerly awaiting the German reply to the programme of the Locarno Powers in general, as well as to the proposed Rhine standstill agreement in particular, although political circles here entertain no doubt that the reply will be negative. The same circles, however, stress that what matters most is not the wording but the tenor of the German reply and whether it will leave the door open for negotiations, — which, as some papers hint — France, Belgium and Italy would be prepared to empower the British Government to conduct on their behalf.

The Times sees in the new Locarno Pact, the outlines of which were sketched in the memorandum, the first phase of a possible future understanding, and the paper goes on to say that it should not be forgotten that if the four Locarno Powers had failed to reach agreement on a provisional basis dangerous confusion would inevitably have ensued, with the result of rendering negotiations concerning Herr Hitler's proposals impossible.

This, continues the journal, has now been avoided and to have been able to get thus far within the last fortnight already constitutes a respectable performance. — Trans-Ocean Service.

IMPUDENT OFFER INDIGNATION IN BERLIN

Return To Accursed
Days Of Versailles

PROPOSALS DENOUNCED AS SIMPLY ABSURD

Berlin, Yesterday.

The Locarno plan is denounced in the morning papers. It is described as a collective impudence and mockery of Germany's readiness for understanding, impossible and making unreasonable demands. The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says that it cannot imagine how even one of the four Powers that agreed to this ugly document could reckon that Germany would ever agree to such proposals.

The Voelkslicher Beobachter says that the plan shows that the Powers have learnt nothing, and are again in a frame of mind which makes the accursed days of Versailles re-live.

The Lokalkatzeiger says that the proposals are simply absurd.—Reuter.

U.S. SILVER POLICY

Announcement Said To Be Pending

Washington, Yesterday. The members of the Senate silver bloc are predicting that the administration may have to make an announcement on silver if the present trend of the world market continues.

However, Treasury officials say that they know of no impending statement. Their predictions are based largely on the reports reaching the Senate Silver Investigation Committee, that India is already in the market and the other countries are taking war preparedness steps, including the acquisition of silver, rather than dumping it.—Reuter.

London, Yesterday. Pending the German reply to the Locarno proposals the newspaper comments indicate the general hope that Germany, if she cannot accept all the proposals, will at least make alternative suggestions instead of giving a blank refusal. If the German objections to a unilateral zone are found to be an obstacle to agreement it is thought that the French Government might co-operate in finding a different solution, which, it is suggested, might be a bilateral zone, British and Italian troops being stationed on the French side.

COMMUNISM IN SPAIN

Demonstrations By Children

FAR-REACHING "RESOLUTIONS" PASSED

Madrid, Yesterday.

An unique demonstration of "Anti-Fascist Champions" organized in the city of Santander by the local Communist group, consisting exclusively of several hundred children between 10 and 12 years of age, who, after noisily parading through the streets, held a meeting to-day, at which they adopted a number of "resolutions" demanding the secularisation of education, the control of the activities of the teachers by school-children's commissions and the dismissal of all "reactionary" teachers. The youthful demonstrators then marched to the Governor's palace, where copies of the resolutions were presented to the Governor. The demonstration closed with a "speech" delivered by a 12-year old boy from the balcony of the palace.—Trans-Ocean Service.

PROMINENT RESIDENT OF SINGAPORE PASSES

Shanghai, Yesterday. — The death has occurred of Mr. Lin Yi-shun, a prominent Chinese resident of Singapore, who arrived in Shanghai on March 13.—Reuter.

British manoeuvres in the Mediterranean, off the African coast, provided the action for this remarkable picture of a giant 21-foot torpedo hitting the waves on its journey toward the "enemy."

5,000 ITALIANS SAID TO HAVE BEEN AMBUSHED

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS REACH CAPITAL FROM DESSIE

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

As yet unconfirmed reports from Dessie assert that 5,000 Italians were ambushed and wiped out in bitter hand-to-hand fighting with numerically superior Abyssinian forces yesterday. Similar reports have often been received here from the front, but generally turn out to be greatly exaggerated.

New York, Yesterday.

Three flood towns in Pennsylvania and one in Ohio have been rigidly quarantined owing to an outbreak of typhoid, diphtheria and scarlet fever. Army doctors and the Red Cross are co-operating in an effort to stamp out the diseases before there is danger of the infection spreading. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

CHIANG'S TRIP TO FENGHUA

Ancestral Tombs Visited

Nanking, Yesterday. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his wife have left for Fenghua by air to visit their ancestral tombs. They are expected to return here in a few days.—Reuter.

The well-known British financier, Mr. Ricketts, whose efforts to obtain an Abyssinian concession for an American oil concern gained much publicity for him some months ago, arrived here on Thursday, but refused to give any information of the purpose of his visit, which, since Mr. Ricketts came directly from Rome, is widely believed to be of a political rather than a business nature. FOOTBALL WAR IN FRANCE

SEQUEL TO RIOT
IN PARIS

URUGUAYAN PLAYERS ASKED TO LEAVE COUNTRY

Paris, Yesterday.

A rupture in the football relations between France and Uruguay appears to be foreshadowed by the action taken by the Paris Football League, which, as a result of the riotous scenes that occurred in the recent match between the Monte Video and Paris football teams, and for which the Uruguayan players are held to have been chiefly responsible, has decided to request the Uruguayan team to cancel all their remaining matches in France and to return to Monte Video.

The resolution has been forwarded to the French Football Association with the demand that it be put into effect.

Press reports from Amsterdam state that similar action has been taken by the Dutch Football Association, which is stated, as a result of the Paris incident, to have called off the two matches which the Uruguayan team was scheduled to play in Holland shortly.—Trans-Ocean Service.

BUT REPULSED DURING COUNTER SALLY

DAWN ATTACK ON MAINLAND CONFIDENTLY EXPECTED

The decisive stage of the Combined Manoeuvres was expected to be reached at dawn to-day, when it was confidently expected that the Blue Land troops would effect a landing of considerable forces on both the mainland and the Island. The defenders of the Island were awaiting a definite move on the part of the invaders, so that the reserve forces, consisting of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Force, could be brought into effective action against the enemy.

During the night certain enemy forces were landed at Deep Water Bay and occupied Wongneichong Gap, but they were driven back in the first major engagement of the "war."

Attacking aircraft did a certain amount of damage, but they suffered considerable casualties from the anti-aircraft defence units.

The following communique was issued from Fortress Headquarters at 1.30 a.m. to-day:—

During March 21 enemy aircraft have continued intensive air attacks on vulnerable points, both on the Island and mainland. Owing to good visibility bombing was carried out at a greater height than during Friday evening, and it is estimated that probably fewer casualties to aircraft and less damage by aircraft was effected yesterday. After 5 p.m. yesterday the H.K.V.D.F. was deployed in action and all vulnerable points on the Island and mainland were in fact protected by A.A.M.G.s. Flour bags were in fact dropped by enemy aircraft and it is reported unofficially that one flour bag at least gained a bullseye on a Royal Naval Dockyard Lewis gunner.

Air attacks continued after dark, and the A.A. search-lights of the defence were successful in keeping attacking planes in their beams for considerable periods, and enabled the A.A. guns to cause considerable casualties to the enemy aircraft. (Continued on Page 17.)

"WAR" ASSUMES REALITY

Harbour Entrances One Blaze Of Light

ENEMY INTELLIGENCE STAFF
LAND AS FISHERMEN

The Combined Manoeuvres between the Services and the Volunteers almost assumed reality last night when batteries of search-lights swept the harbour entrances, unceasingly in an effort to pick out the enemy (Blue Land) forces.

Veray Lights, both green and white, shot up into the air with dull booms, illuminating the surrounding areas with a ghostly brilliance, these being pre-arranged signals of the alleged sighting of enemy troops or ships.

Blue Land Forces, however, made an unexpected landing between Aberdeen and Deep Water Bay Golf Club, where they were alleged to have captured the Anti-Aircraft Batteries. Rumour has it, however, that they were "spotted" and allowed to land. (Continued on Page 17.)

IMPORTANT ADDITION

London, Yesterday.

An important addition to the Singapore air force is officially announced. A Volunteer Air Force will be inaugurated on March 25. Hangars have been erected and a new $1,000,000 civil aerodrome has been chosen as the headquarters. Training planes are being sent from England.

The volunteer force at the start will be formed from a strong nucleus of Royal Air Force airmen. About 100 recruits have already signed up.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

London, Yesterday.

While engaged in flying exercises 25 miles east of Gibraltar, the aircraft-carrier Furious struck a submerged object. A diver's examination showed marks of the Furious having met an obstruction, but the vessel was not damaged.—Reuter.

WEATHER REPORT

The moderate anti-cyclone over China appears to be moving eastward. Pressure is now highest in the vicinity of Shanghai. A depression is moving eastward to the south of Tokyo. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was north-east winds, fresh; cloudy.

CAMERA CONSCIOUS

By DOUGLAS FRASER

OF course, when we were in the yacht I scarcely knew him. Peter was the chief cameraman and I was the second leading lady.

The leading lady proper was a slinky brunette with a pseudo-Swedish accent and a long cigarette-holder. I didn't like her much, but she could act and the public ate her up.

Old Man Johnson owned the yacht. It was the first day out of port and we had just finished a swell lunch—all of us, that is, except the leading lady, who had a figure to cherish.

Mr. Johnson was in his cabin asleep and Peter was below cleaning the camera. I never saw him except he was fussing with his equipment.

The sea was very calm, and I leaned over the rail and watched the churning foam slide along the smooth white side of the yacht. Behind us was the dim brown outline of the Mexican coast, and on the horizon I saw a haze of smoke from a big Pacific liner.

Something black and shiny glistened in the sunlight quite near to the yacht and then disappeared. I looked more closely and saw three or four more. I wondered if they were sharks, and looked around for someone to ask.

Peter came out on deck at that moment and stood at the rail next to me. He was cleaning a lens and held it up to the light to see through it.

"Those are sharks out there, aren't they?" I said, pretending to know all about it.

He looked at the bobbing, shiny objects and then at me.

"Porpoises," he muttered, and went back to his camera. I turned back to the railing, feeling pretty hurt and angry. I was a bit puzzled, too, because he was very different from what he had been on shore. I thought maybe he had some family trouble that was worrying him.

Van Durek, our director, strolled up and stopped beside me, and I mentioned it to him.

"Funny, that, I noticed it myself. He came up to me before lunch acting as though he was going to confess to a murder and then he veered off without saying a word." Van Durek shrugged his shoulders and chewed his cigar. Then he looked at me with a funny expression. "I bet it's a girl," he said and strode away.

I hated to admit it to myself, but that last remark made me go hot all over. I was beginning to think a lot about Peter lately and the idea of him with another girl wasn't too pleasing.

Van Durek came back along the deck and waved his hand to the horizon. "It looks as if a storm is blowing up."

Startled, I looked where he was pointing. Clouds were gathering and a strong wind was beginning to sweep the deck. It was getting darker, too.

Van Durek went to find the captain and told me to go inside.

The leading lady and the rest of the company were in the saloon when I arrived. There were about a dozen of us in all, and not one that wasn't looking pale and rather scared.

Nerves were in a Terrible Way — 'ASPRO' a Surprise

1 Garden Street, Middle Brighton, S.S. 15/12/32

Dear Sirs,
Last week I had 18 teeth out, and not being well my nerves were in a terrible way; in fact, I had to be taken home from the dentist. I went on for a couple of days in terrible pain with my head and eyes, due to my nerves, so I had to go to a doctor. On my way home I bought a packet of 'ASPRO'. I took three and laid down, and to my surprise I woke up feeling lovely. Now, if I feel a slight headache at all I fly to my 'ASPRO'. I think 'ASPRO' should be in every home. I could mention a few more facts where 'ASPRO' has done good in my home. Once tried, always used.
Yours faithfully,

Sardines That Were Not Fit To Eat

9,900 TINS CONDEMNED

Nine thousand nine hundred tins of sardines were involved in an application at Gullhall Justice Room last month, when the condemnation of 99 cases seized at the City and Continental Wharf, Upper Thames-street, was asked for.

Dr. Willoughby Mason Willoughby, Medical Officer for the City, said that some of the tins had presumably burst or been punctured to allow the gas arising from putrefaction to escape and then resealed.

Answering Ald. Sir George Wilkinson, Dr. Willoughby said the tins were an extremely old lot. They had probably been travelling about from port to port in the hope of escaping detection.

Gross State Of Affairs
It was a perfectly gross state of affairs. People were not safe with that sort of thing about.

Sir George Wilkinson: What could be the possible consequence to anyone eating any of those sardines?—Anyone eating a few ounces would no doubt be poisoned. I have never met with anything like this in the whole of my 25 years' experience.

Mr. W. E. J. McDonnell, Assistant City Solicitor, remarked that in the event of condemnation the Public Health Department would pursue the matter further.

The consignment was condemned.

"HONG KONG" CLUB

£142 Fines And Costs

A total of £142 in fines and costs was imposed by Mr. Boyd at Marlborough-street police-court last month for licensing offences and offences respecting "fruit" machines at the Hong Kong Club, Shaftesbury-avenue, London. The magistrate ordered that the club should be struck off the register, but granted a postponement for seven days.

It was conducted in orderly fashion, he said, and on genuine lines. He added: "It is rightly said, however, that these premises, for the time that they were under observation, were conducted with total disregard of the licensing laws and the provisions of the Betting Act."

Harold Edwin Chessman, secretary of the club, was fined £30 with £12 costs on three summonses under the Licensing Act; Thomas Walter Sleigh, of Neal-street, W.C., the lessee of the premises, as fined £20 with £3 costs for aiding and abetting on two summonses; and the Automatic Machine Co. Ltd. of Wembley, was fined £20 with £4 costs in respect of the machines.

Fines of £20 were also imposed on Chessman and Sleigh respecting the machines.

DIFFICULTIES OF A DOWRY

Four Sisters Commit Suicide Together

TRAGEDY IN INDIA

Calcutta—A quadruple suicide directly caused by faithful observance of the Hindu marriage dowry system, was revealed last month.

Four Hindu sisters, the youngest being only 18, living in Calcutta, entered into a pact to end their lives in order to relieve their 70-year-old father of the worry of finding money to form their marriage dowry.

The father, who is a Government pensioner, had spent his life savings in marrying off three of his seven daughters.

Lives Sacrificed
The remaining four saw that the problem of their marriage was sending him insane, and therefore sacrificed their lives by taking fatal doses of opium.

The tragedy has caused a stir in Hindu society.

Van Durek said he thought he could cut the story to fit in the scene, and hinted that a bonus to Peter wouldn't go far astray.

"Sorry to be a wet blanket," I broke in, "but the only one who'll ever be able to use those shots is King Neptune. Peter gave me the camera to carry to the boat, and I dropped the whole caboose over the side."

Van Durek started off again in his pet language, and I got up to take a little walk. What the leading lady was saying as I left didn't make me any happier.

I settled down beside a sand dune to have a quiet little weep when Peter slouched around the bend.

"That darned woman gets on my nerves," he said conversationally. The sun began to come out again when I realised he meant the leading lady.

"I'm sorry about the films," I said, thinking I'd better square myself if I could.

"Forget it," replied Peter. "There never were any films. I've just told them."

They say people listen with their mouths wide open when they're really surprised. I did.

"Nobody knew."

"All morning in the yacht, when I was so worried, I was trying to tell Van Durek that I'd left the whole batch of film at the lot. Heaven knows how I managed to forget them."

"But on the bridge—the camera"

"Of course, it did help the panic a bit. Nobody knew I was shooting them with an empty camera."

I sighed happily, and then remembered something.

"But the equipment, I did lose that, and it cost plenty, too, didn't it?"

"Yes, you'll have to do something to replace the equipment," said Peter thoughtfully. "Have you any money?"

"Not enough, I'm afraid," I confessed.

Peter bit his lip and looked at me.

"Then you'll just have to marry me," he said.

(The End)

AMAZING EYE OPERATION

Muscle Grafted To Eyelid

CHILD BLIND FROM BIRTH ENABLED TO SEE

The story has been disclosed of a remarkable operation on a child's eyes in the Royal Waterloo Hospital, S.E.

The patient, a five-year-old boy, was born blind. His eyeballs were normal, but his eyelids were permanently closed. The muscles necessary to open them were missing. All that he could see was a small strip of the floor through a slight opening at the bottom of his right eye-lid.

He was taken to the hospital in 1934. A piece of muscle was removed from his thigh and was grafted into his right eyelid. It is believed to be the first operation of this kind ever attempted.

Operation Repeated

The operation was so successful that the boy was brought back to the hospital last year, and the operation was repeated on his left eyelid, which had never opened at all.

When the bandages were removed the lids were found to open and shut naturally. Moreover, the eyeballs moved with the opening and shutting of the lids in the usual way.

Now six months have passed since the second operation, and the hospital is able to announce its completed success.

It is customary in Hindu circles for the parents of the bride to provide a heavy dowry, and this frequently leads to borrowing, which places the father in debt for many years.

Van Durek came in with the captain and told us not to worry. It was a fairly bad storm, but it would soon blow over and there was absolutely no danger.

The captain added that he was heading for an inlet near by that we could shelter in until morning. The news cheered us, and everyone started to talk at once as though they'd been through dozens of storms at sea before.

Suddenly, in the midst of it all, there was a terrific jolt and we were all sent reeling into one corner of the room.

The radio stopped dead and I could hear the roaring of the storm outside and the hoarse shouting of the crew as they scrambled up to the decks.

Then some silly fool of a woman—probably the leading lady—screamed and everyone started to panic.

When I got outside, the deck was a hubbub of confusion. Part of the crew was fighting to lower the lifeboats and the rest was trying to keep the passengers back. Van Durek was swearing in some foreign language and the leading lady was having hysterics in a corner all my herself.

"In liners the band plays a rousing march," bawled Van Durek, coming back to English. "We don't even have the radio."

That struck me as funny, and I began to laugh hysterically.

"Camera! Camera!"

Then Van Durek started to shout "Camera! Camera!" and waved his arms furiously. I thought he'd gone crazy until I looked up at the bridge.

There, beside the captain, Peter had set up his camera and was coolly turning the handle. He was taking shots of the whole scene.

Instantly I found myself calmer. As the camera swung in my direction I played to it.

I began to act.

I couldn't help it.

The others noticed Peter also and magically the atmosphere changed. No longer were they a panic-stricken crowd fighting to get off the boat. They were making a picture that might play to millions of people. They had turned camera-conscious.

I pushed my way to the steps and climbed up to the bridge beside Peter.

Peter glanced at me and said: "Here, help to keep this camera steady."

I grabbed the tripod and braced myself against the rail.

"What happened, anyway?"

Hit A Sandbank

"We hit a sandbank, and we're breaking up."

"Don't be so cheerful," I said, and tried to smile.

Peter didn't reply, and went on grimly grinding his camera.

Then he shouted and pushed the whole thing into my arms.

"Get this to the boats, quick. I'll be right after you."

I saw him disappear down the stairs, and, staggering under the heavy apparatus, I followed. I dragged the thing across the deck and tried to hoist it into one of the boats. I had it balanced on the railing when the yacht gave a lurch and somebody bumped into me.

"Get in," shouted a voice behind me, and I looked over my shoulder and saw Peter. He was holding the leading lady under one arm like a sack of coals and pushing me forward with the other.

"The camera—" I gasped.

"To hell with the camera! Get in!"

The yacht gave another heave and the camera was wrenched from my grasp and went spinning into the foaming sea below.

Half-fainting, I climbed over the railing and fell into the lifeboat.

Then I actually did faint.

When I came to the lot of us were sitting around on the beach, wretchedly uncomfortable.

The leading lady had just finished telling how thrilled she was at Peter's rescue and gazing at him fondly.

"I've got to congratulate you, Pete," said Old Man Johnson jovially. "That camera stunt was a brain-wave. It was a tough break losing the yacht, but with those shots you got of the wreck we ought to do without any more ocean scenes. What do you think, Van?"

Building Up To Beauty

THE girl whose curves are "rounded" gets plenty of beauty advice. But what about those poor neglected ones with a straight-as-a-pencil silhouette? It is doubtful, really, which is worse from the beauty point of view—being too plump or too thin. But I have seen many an attractive girl who is perhaps a little too plump "in places." To my way of thinking, it is the girl who is really too thin who loses every point in the game. The too slim ones so often look and feel (which is much worse) chilled to the bone, and warmth and colour are vitally essential to beauty, for the skin that is under-nourished will very soon shrink and begin to look faded and dull.

Learn To Relax

MODERN life simply takes—and takes, and we must use all our wits to see that what we lose day by day in nervous energy is put back in some form or other. Nourishing diet, stimulating tonics, and rejuvenating skin foods are all necessary to keep our youthful and attractive complexions and fresh, firm figures.

Doctors tell us that we must learn to relax, and thus build up our spare energies, so that we do not overtax our strength in this top-speed, no-time-to-waste way of modern living.

Your Poor Nerves!

JUST think for a minute how each day is a constant "wear and tear" upon your nerves! An alarm wakes you up with a start in the morning—or the baby has the same effect!—and all day there is the hurry-scurry of doors slamming, cars "honking," bells ringing, and little, exasperating things going wrong.

Problems Solved

Dear Helen—

All Enquiries will be Treated in Confidence

Dear Helen,

I am terribly in love with a boy whom I met about two years ago. During the first year we were very good friends, and he seemed very much in love with me. Last year he went home for a holiday and wrote me many letters. When he came back he had his examination and I had mine. For three months we did not see each other. After that I found he was changed. He did not want to go out with me, though I rang him up and asked him. He made such a simple and clever excuse—"busy"—that I could not bear it.

I sailed away for some time in order to forget him. But it was impossible. I remembered him all the time. I have come back now and am told that he is very friendly with a girl who is studying in the same college as he is. I wish to be friends with him again. He does not understand that I love him. Will you please tell me what to do?

A. W.

Perhaps this friend of yours does not know you are back again in Hong Kong. Why not ask him to a small party? That is much better than ringing him up to go out alone with you, for then he can not think you are necessarily singling him out. When you meet again, be quite natural and show him that you are pleased to see him, without gushing. You will be able to tell then what his attitude towards you is.

If you see he is truly indifferent (and if he is not the next move will come from him), you must be brave, my dear, and face up to the painful fact that we can every seldom have everything we want. It is cruel and hard, I know; but whatever you do don't waste time pining for the unobtainable. Surround yourself with new friends and plenty of interests.

You must try at your age not to take boys too seriously. Remember, a boy still at college has his way to make in the world. It is very improbable that he can think of settling down for some years to come.

Dear Helen,

They say that love at first sight is a dangerous game; however, I had never believed it existed until I came to be involved in it. Through an introduction, I fell wildly in love with a girl at the first moment my eyes rested on her. We loved each other for several weeks—we went about together and enjoyed things. I was tremendously happy and my trust in her never faltered until one evening, for some reason or other, she told me a lie. Since then I never went out with her again, and now my life seems to be exhausted. In spite of the fact that she has told me a lie, I still can't stop myself from adoring her. Shall I make a come-back or not?

I don't wonder you were angry and disappointed enough to break off your friendship when you found that this girl had lied to you. Love without trust is quite impossible.

But if you really feel so unhappy about it, why not give her one more chance? You must, however, fight against the very natural inclination to return to your friendship with a suspicious manner, always doubting what she says. Ask her for an assurance that she will not lie to you again—and let her feel you really are trusting her. But don't spoil everything by asking too many questions!

Dear Helen,

I am terribly in love with a boy who is about two inches taller than I am and about four years my senior. At one time we always met at picnics and used to have a lot of fun. Sometimes he used to invite me to picnics or to pictures; and on other occasions we used to go out hiking at the Valley, alone or with a crowd of friends.

Since then—I should say about five months ago—he has never invited me out, and I could not possibly ask him to. It drove me mad when I saw him, the other day going out with another girl almost my same height.

I have a good reason to explain why he hated me. The reason is, I think, just because I go out dancing with other friends of mine. As he could not dance, I have got to go with some one. How shall I make him go out with me? He is also a very narrow-minded person.

"Brokenhearted"

I can only suggest what I have just advised to another writer this week. Ask this friend of yours to a small party—perhaps a tennis party would be a good idea. If he seems to want to be friends again, you will have to come to some agreement about your dancing. Personally, I see no reason why you should not go dancing just because he does not care for it; but at the same time it would be unreasonable for you to stipulate that he should never take out another girl, while you are going about with other men.

THRILLING SENIOR LEAGUE SOCCER MATCH AT CAROLINE HILL

SPORT AT WAH YAN

TREMENDOUS ENTHUSIASM

Holiday And Launch Picnic As Prize

SPORTS COACHES HAVE HANDS FULL

Sport at Wah Yan College is given the greatest encouragement by the new House system in operation there.

To arrange for an equal distribution of games for the 900 boys, it was found necessary to divide the College into seven houses. Basketball, Athletics, Football, Swimming, Volleyball and Debating all come into a system whereby points are allotted for all the events and the House with the most points at the end of the year is rewarded with a holiday and a launch picnic. The interest in these inter-house matches almost outweighs the interest in matches against other schools.

Another encouragement for the boys to take up exercise this year was an arrangement whereby they could enter the South China Athletic Association in a body at reduced fees. Only boys who are intent on practising their favourite sport are admitted and to date over 300 have joined. With such a large number taking to sports, the six coaches and the sportsmaster are fully occupied.

Volleyball Hopes

Mr. Chung Tse-koung, the coach in basketball and volleyball, is now busy selecting the teams for the Volleyball League. Last year Wah Yan were champions in the Senior League and this year teams will also be entered in the Junior and Juvenile divisions.

This year Wah Yan has tried its hand at baseball and has been lucky in obtaining the services of Ed. Chang as coach. The school has already played several games and the team is shaping very promisingly. They have played the Overseas Chinese team and the Canadians and have given a good account of themselves on every occasion.

In the Junior section of the Hong Kong Basketball League, Wah Yan is still unbeaten and, together with Wah Tai and Wah Kui College, are well in the running for the championship—they have played off their most difficult fixtures.

The Chinese Y.M.C.A. are donating a new Challenge Cup for this competition and Wah Yan hope to be the first to have their name inscribed on it.—Contributed.

FOOTBALL CLUB'S GOLDEN JUBILEE

GOOD PROGRAMME FOR APRIL 4

DINNER DANCE AND CABARET

The Hong Kong Football Club, having been founded in 1886, attains its Golden Jubilee this year and an excellent programme has been arranged for Saturday, April 4, to mark the occasion.

The considerable interest which is being displayed by members is shown by the keen competition for places in the Old Crocks' sides.

This will be the first time in the history of the Colony that a soccer match has been played with a Rugby ball and it will doubtless cause much amusement for both players and spectators.

Big Success Assured

The Club dance last year was most successful, and as a Cabaret is being introduced on this occasion it is anticipated that the Roof Garden will be filled to capacity.

The following is the programme:—

3 p.m. Rugby Football—Old Crocks v. The Rest (10 minutes each way).

3.35 p.m. Association Football—Old Crocks v. The Rest (10 minutes each way).

4.10 p.m. Association Football—Soccer v. Rugby members with Rugby ball and Association goals. (20 minutes each way).

7.15 p.m. Annual Dinner at the Roof Garden, Hong Kong Hotel, to be followed by a Dance and Cabaret at 9.45 p.m. Ladies will be admitted by courtesy to the Dance and Cabaret. Tickets for the Dinner and Dance will be by ticket only, the cost of which is $5. Admission to the Dance and Cabaret is $2.

Tickets may be obtained from the following:—Mr. B. L. Bickford (Colonial Secretary's Office), Mr. L. G. Robertson (Hong Kong Bank), Mr. S. H. Garrod (Canadian Pacific), Mr. A. F. Walkden (Dodwell & Co., Ltd., Ice House Street), Mr. G. Rodger (Hong Kong Tramways), Mr. G. Hill (Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd.) and Club House (Happy Valley).

CALCUTTA CUP HISTORY

G. A. J. Rothney Finds Famous Series

POLO RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TROPHY

(By C. J. BRUCE MARRIATT)

Yesterday England beat Scotland at Twickenham to win the Calcutta Cup.

As the Calcutta Cup dates back over fifty years (to 1878 to be exact) some details of its origin may not be uninteresting to the present generation. The more so as one sometimes hears "Wales may win the Cup" or "Ireland may lose it." According, however, to the conditions of the donors, only England or Scotland can hold it.

In 1872 a young Englishman, G. A. James Rothney, arrived in Calcutta. At Home he had been a keen member of the Oakfield F. C.

At this date there was no Rugby club in India, only an occasional match between one regiment and another. Rothney missed his football, and, meeting other Englishmen, the alumni of the Public Schools, his efforts led to the formation in November, 1872, of the Calcutta F. C. Of this he was the Secretary, Treasurer, and dominating spirit.

Trying Conditions

The colours were red and white. J. E. Taylor, an old Clapham Rover, was elected Captain, and a ground was obtained near Fort William, between the Plessey Gate and Eden Gardens.

Matches were played against the Military, Civil Servants, and Civilians; also International matches, England v. the World, or Scotland and Ireland v. the Rest. The keenest match, however, was against the Fort, who were captained by an old Harrovian, A. T. Leslie. For this encounter both sides practised at 100 in the shade.

The leading players of the Calcutta F. C. whose names deserve preservation were:—G. V. Yule, W. K. Eddis, G. R. Hart, and G. W. Buckland (Rugby), E. J. Short, J. W. Hind, J. W. Hawkins, and F. D. Broughton (Woolington), F. J. Atkinson, H. R. King, and F. R. Swaine (Hallebury), E. G. Harrison (Blackheath Proprietary), and W. S. Schurr (Dedham).

Rothney's Character

Rothney's character, which is given in the "Football Annual" of the period, shows the stamp of man he was, namely, "A most devoted and unflinching player, always on the ball; a dead tackler; never misses a game, whether match or practice."

In 1874 the Club was greatly

Radio's Lucky Football Win Over University

The Radio were fortunate winners in the Second Division of the local soccer League yesterday when they beat the University by an only goal at Caroline Hill. Practically throughout the match they were on the defensive against a fast-moving attack led by that strong, go-ahead forward, Blake, their own efforts being confined to speedy breakaways.

The University were best served by a strong defence which met the spasmodic attacks of the Radio forwards with confidence, and what little Lim was called upon to clear from the vicinity of his goal, he accomplished with ease. The University forward line moved with smoothness and precision, but over-did the feeding of Blake, who was under close observation by the Radio defence.

In the second half they gave the Radio full-backs a harassing time, but Arcull and Souza tackled and kicked away with confidence and ability. In goal, M. Souza performed capably and dealt with the University marksmen in fine style. When the University were making desperate efforts to equalise he brought off many very fine saves from Blake, Tam and Liaw.

Midway through the first-half the Radio opened the scoring when Hamet beat Lim.

After the change of ends the University dominated play, but, despite heroic efforts by Blake, they could not wipe off the deficit and the Radio, resisting stoutly to the end, emerged successful, if lucky, winners.

ATHLETIC HELD

S. CHINA "B" VERY LUCKY TO SECURE POINT

FAIL TO CONVERT PENALTY KICK

WONG WAH-KAI'S BRILLIANT GOALKEEPING

The First Division League football encounter between South China "B" and the Athletic, which took place before a large crowd of excited fans at Caroline Hill yesterday, provided excellent fare, the final result being a goalless draw. This was the former's eighth drawn encounter this season!

South China "B" were fortunate to emerge with a share of the spoils, as they were on the defensive throughout the whole of the game. For long periods in the second half the Athletic literally smothered their opponents' defence, but sterling football by the two full-backs, Chung Chee-ying and Yu Hing-yuen, in addition to an outstanding exhibition between the "sticks" by Wong Wa-kai, saved the day for them.

The latter time and again came to the rescue of his team, and his uncanny anticipation, safe positioning and inspired display must have been heart-breaking to the fast Athletic attack. Excepting for this one position, the Athletic were superior to South China in all departments, even the good play of Chung Chee-ying and Yu Hing-yuen being overshadowed by the fine performance of the Athletic full-backs.

Mak Shui-hon Shines

Mak Shui-hon, occupying the left-back berth, easily captured the honours as the most accomplished player on view. Chan Shek-pui had a comparatively easy outing in the Athletic goal, with one exception, when he was forced to dive full-length to clear a penalty-kick which Ng Po-kui had placed well to the bottom corner.

Served by an intermediate line which was right on top of the South China attack, the Athletic forwards were constantly in possession and were seen in fast-moving attacks, their rapid passing completely bewildering their opposing halves.

Tang Kwong-sum played inspired football on the right-wing. Exceptionally fast, he had the best of his duels with Henry Young and Yu Hing-yuen and only the soundness of Wong Wa-kai prevented him from collecting at least three goals.

Athletic's Weak Link

The weak link in the Athletic attack was the centre-forward position, where Wong Wing-hong failed to combine with his colleagues, but his transfer to inside-left after the interval, did much to remedy this weakness. A tendency to crowd one another by the inside trio robbed the Athletic attack of much of its sting and greatly helped the South China defence in repelling their repeated onslaughts. Nevertheless, it would be fair to say that had the Athletic run out winners by a score of five clear goals, it would not have been under-estimating their superiority.

There were plenty of thrills and these were mostly provided by the spectacular goalkeeping of the South China custodian, who saved a scorching free-kick taken just outside the penalty area by Tsui Ah-fai, while at the other end Chan Shek-pui disposed of a penalty kick in brilliant style.

C.B.A. LADIES WIN

Hong Kong Ladies Lose
Friendly 3 To 2

TWO GOALS FOR MISS SMITH
AND MRS. HARROP

The C.B.A. Ladies, 1935-6 Caer Clark Cup hockey champions, once again proved their superiority over the Hong Kong Ladies when they met in a friendly hockey match at Sookunpoo yesterday and won by 3 goals to 2, after leading 2-1 at the interval.

Play was not of a very high standard and for the greater part of the first half the C.B.A. monopolised the exchanges. The Hong Kong Ladies' defence, however, held out till Miss Marie Smith received when well placed and crashed in a shot which gave Mrs. Lunsdon no chance whatever. Shortly after Mrs. Harrop equalised for the Hong Kong Ladies with a well-timed shot.

The C.B.A. were not to be denied, however, and just before the interval they secured the lead through Miss Doris Hunt, following a goal-mouth melee.

In the second half play was more even and some of the best hockey of the afternoon was seen during this period. Miss M. Brynson played a good game at centre-half and checked many dangerous moves. Goals were scored by Miss Marie Smith (C.B.A.) and Mrs. Harrop in this half.

C.B.A.: Miss F. Best; Miss P. Woolley, Miss D. Moss; Miss G. MacNider, Miss M. Brynson, Miss I. Woolley; Miss E. Rousseau, Miss M. Smith, Miss E. Woolley, Miss R. Blackburn and Miss D. Hunt.
H.K. Ladies: Mrs. Lunsdon; Miss J. Smalley, Miss G. Swan; Mrs. Bennitt, Miss B. Abraham, Miss M. Sleep; Miss W. Marsh, Miss V. Gordon-Smith, Mrs. P. M. Harrop, Miss R. Smalley and Miss V. Blackburn.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN PROBLEM

Present Chances Of Settlement

Best Hope In Permanent Military Alliance

(By LORD LLOYD)

NEGOTIATIONS for "a final settlement" of the Egyptian question are on foot again, after a not unwholesome interval of five years, and a coalition Government in Cairo, somewhat hopefully called "Le Front Uni," has been set up to engage in the great adventure.

It would be out of place here, however diverting the pastime, to attempt any analysis of the very characteristic processes of Palace and party manoeuvre which, since Mr. Peterson's mission in 1934, have led in turn to the rise and fall of Tawfik Nassim Pasha's Cabinet, to the swift resurgence of the Wafd under Nahas Pasha, or to the appointment of the King's "Chef de Cabinet," Ali Maher Pasha, as the head of the new Government.

Two things, however, will be generally conceded; one, that the Palace has no reason to feel dissatisfied with its own share in the events of the last few weeks; and, two, that the term "united front" is unlikely to be a durable accurate description of the conflicting elements that are being called to common counsel at the present moment; for nothing has occurred during the last five years to bridge over the deep differences between, or allay the mutual hostility of, the rival party leaders in Egypt, save a general hunger for office, sharpened by years of impotence and deprivation.

Unsatisfactory Features

If such a situation as this is not too favourable a foundation for the inception of a task that has baffled so many negotiators in the past, there are other features which, at any rate on the surface, are scarcely more satisfactory.

The recent failure, for instance, of the Government and the Courts to put a swift end to the turbulence and lawlessness of the students—disorders actually considered sufficiently unprecedented to prevent a British High Commissioner from attending a public function in the centre of Cairo—and their inability to curb the students' violent, if shallow, anti-British demonstrations; all this has been but a sorry prelude to the resumption of friendly negotiations.

Amongst those, indeed, best acquainted with Egypt, there are not lacking men who consider that his Majesty's Government would have been better advised to postpone their offer to negotiate, so as not to risk even the appearance of repeating past error as regards negotiation under duress, or of seeming to concede to agitation what they had found it necessary to refuse to friendly request.

The question will then be asked as to why his Majesty's Government have offered to negotiate at such a moment. The Foreign Office, at all events, cannot have been unmindful of the unhappy history of past attempts; of Mr.

Ramsay MacDonald's failure in 1924; of the failure of the Sarwat negotiations in 1927, in spite of concessions even greater than those proposed in the MacDonald draft; or of the collapse of Mr. Henderson's attempt in 1930, despite the further surrender to Nahas Pasha of concessions greater and more perilous than those of his predecessors.

Changed Circumstances

Nor are these the only, or even most, difficult, of the circumstances which now invest the new attempt at treaty-making.

Since the last negotiations took place our whole situation in the Eastern Mediterranean has undergone profound modification. The growth of Italian power, the greatly enhanced importance from the aerial point of view of the whole North African littoral and its immediate hinterland, as well as that of Sinai and Palestine—in fact, of the whole south-east corner of the Levant—to say nothing of the thorny growth of the Palestine problem or the increasing realisation of the comparatively proximate termination of the Suez Canal concession—all these are factors which have lately reminded the public in Britain of the vital strategic importance of Egypt to that country, and moved them gravely to reflect, if such big changes have taken place in the last short five years how much greater may be the changes in another ten, and how careful should we be not lightly to modify a proved position without the certainty that the change would afford the British Empire an equal or greater security on this vital section of our line of communications.

It is perhaps in the very existence of these new difficulties and dangers that the answer to my question lies.

New Regard For England

Above and behind the noisy folly of the students or the manoeuvres of palace and party politicians, there is in Egypt to-day, unless I am much mistaken, I will not say a new, but a stronger feeling of regard for England and things English than has been manifest for several years past.

The fact that there are few illusions left as to the virtues of parliamentary government, at any rate as fitfully practised in the Nile Valley, has not made the despotism any the more desired; for if the Egyptian politician cannot always take a very long view about external affairs, he certainly has no short memory about his own internal ones.

He is hence all the more disposed to-day favourably to contrast the world position of Great Britain and her Dominions, under their system of free government, with the excesses of the Nazi regime or with the unhappy internal difficulties which afflict neighbouring Italy at the present time; and to desire, in so far as he can do so consistently with his national feeling, to come into closer co-operation with that system for purposes of defence and possibly of economic co-operation.

New Method Of Approach

Should this diagnosis of Egyptian feeling be correct, much will still depend on the method of approach on both sides in the matter of negotiations.

If these are merely to be recommenced upon the old bases of past treaty controversies and founded upon past failures, or even if new discussions are just to start where the old left off in 1930, then the negotiations are doomed to failure from the start, and his Majesty's Government will have been in no way justified in embarking upon an adventure which must obviously have been sterile from the start.

If, on the other hand, both sides are prepared to take a big view, and are quick to recognise that many of the circumstances which surrounded the last conversations have changed; if the things that now so obviously belong to the equal peace and security of both countries can immediately be dealt with in that atmosphere of practical realism which world circumstances to-day clearly indicate, that is to say, if the first objective of the negotiations were a free and permanent military alliance between the two countries—the sphere in fact, in which England and Egypt could be of most obvious value one to the other—then the movement is not only not an inopportune one, but possibly the most propitious of any for many a long year past.

But plain speech as between friends and potential allies is essential. There are those amongst the Egyptian team of negotiators who, to my knowledge, can not only stand, but will welcome plain speech.

British Troops In Egypt

What, then, are the things that must be said?

The first of them is that the military terms of the 1930 draft Treaty were as futile from the point of view of Egypt's security as they were dangerous and unacceptable from our own.

It is indeed well to recall that if these terms had been in operation to-day—terms which as High Commissioner, it may be remembered, I resisted to the point of resignation—Great Britain would, in the critical circumstances of the present time, have only been allowed 8,500 troops on Egyptian territory, and these would have been forbidden to emerge from their confinement in the Canal zone without the special permission of the Egyptian Government; that Egypt would, further, have been a member of the League of Nations, and that her permission either for the emergence of our troops from their confinement or for the increase of their numbers might easily, in the circumstances of the moment, have been treated as an act of war!

To-day the free and unfettered movement in Egypt of more than twice that number of British troops is not only considered barely sufficient for the defence of Egypt's frontiers, but their presence in any part of Egypt's borders is welcomed by the whole Egyptian people.

WAH YAN OLD BOYS MEET

Dinner Dance Great Success

LOCAL CHARITIES TO BENEFIT

The second annual dinner of the Wah Yan Past Students' Association, which was held in the Hotel Cecil last evening, took the form of a dinner dance, and this departure from the usual procedure proved an unqualified success.

Mr. Fook S. Ko, president of the Association, made a short speech, in the course of which he announced that the greater part of the proceeds of the function would be devoted to various charities in the Colony.

Dance music was supplied by Julian Silverio and his Company, and during the evening several "shots" of the scene were taken by the United Photoplay Company. It is understood that these will be included in the now-reels turned out by the Company.

The President's Speech

Mr. Ko said, inter alia:—

"Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have great pleasure in extending to you a most cordial welcome to this party, which is one of our major social functions of the year. I am delighted to see so many of the members and friends who have taken so much interest in this Association.

"It is a fact that our Association is younger than most of the other old boys' associations, but we refuse to admit that it is less active than the others. During the past year, which saw the birth of our Association, the Council and members assisted me a great deal in bringing the former students into closer touch with the College.

"At the beginning of this year we decided to widen the scope of our Association. We want to do work of social value to the community, and that is the reason why we have organised this dinner dance instead of our usual dinner. We have resolved that the greater part of the earnings of this function shall be donated to various charitable institutions, such as the Tung Wah Hospital, St. John Ambulance Brigade and other similar organisations in the Colony."

Those Present

Prominent among the members of the association present were:—Messrs. Ko Fook-sun (President), Fung Kwok-wah, Leung Kwan, Chan Wai-chuen, Kwan Man-wai, Albert Chan, Kwan Yim-chor, and many others.

GAS MASKS IN SPAIN

Factory To Produce 1,200 A Day

Madrid.—Spain's first gas mask factory, which is being built at Segovia, will be capable of turning out 1,200 masks a day.

The factory is partly financed by the Government, and it is stated that the President has personally encouraged the undertaking.

The factory is the idea of Professor Antonio Blanco, a captain in the Spanish army. He discovered that masks similar to those made abroad, chiefly in Germany and Italy, could be produced in Spain at well under half the price of the foreign article.

Though the factory will be able to produce 1,200 masks a day, its normal daily output will be 600 masks.

In the new North Atlantic rate agreement, the "cabin" class will take the place of "first" class on all trans-Atlantic steamers. The tourist class will also remain practically the same. — Trans-Ocean Service.

COMFORT, in a new high degree, is attained for driver and passengers alike in the new Dodge Six, by a skilful interior arrangement of the longer, lower, all-steel bodies. The lowered floors permit chair-height seats. There is greater space for shoulders and elbows. Form-fitting seats, softly and richly upholstered, afford natural support. Ash receivers are inserted at the ends of the comfortable new arm rests. Appointments throughout are luxurious.

STYLE that magnifies the long, low appearance of the new Dodge Six starts at the very front, in the classic patterned radiator grille and the longer hood with new, air-styled louvers. The windshield, slanting at a pronounced angle, reduces wind resistance and adds rakishness. The new, inset steel top smoothly rounds the graceful roof lines which sweep downward at the rear in sloping streamline contours.

There is a model to suit every individual preference in the 1936 Dodge Six line. All incorporate brilliant performance and great economy.

The Economy Debate

THE Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo, in bringing forward his motion which opened up the whole question of the ability of the Colony to carry the expense of its present administration, undoubtedly ventilated a great deal of public opinion which may be due to a wave of defeatist sentiment, but is certainly very strong and very widespread. If this is misunderstood, and resented by officers who are conscious of earning a good salary by hard work, it should be remembered that the effects of depression look very different and more menacing to employees of private firms means that at a month's notice they are faced with the prospect of being left to face an unsympathetic world and to begin again. With the actual emoluments of the Government Service hidden away in regulations and scales and allowances that they have no time to study, and further complicated by the double currency of pound and dollar, it is not unnatural that exaggerated ideas should gain acceptance and the money total of cost be separated from the service rendered.

The forbidding appearance of the cash account is only partly due to the decadence of international trade from which we suffer and, as the Hon. the Colonial Secretary remarked, it would be pessimistic to take it as permanent. It has been the policy of the Treasury, in conjunction with the Colonial Office at Home, to maintain a cash reserve of $10,000,000. The deficit this year, if the worst comes to the worst, will amount to half of that reserve, and there is strong likelihood that before two years have passed our revenue will have become more elastic—unless, of course, one of these wars with which alarmists keep trying to make our flesh creep should actually burst upon us.

The richest country in the world, America, recently by a stroke of the President's pen, wrote off 48 per cent. off the value of its currency, France wrote off 80 per cent. and England 33 per cent. China wrote off 44 per cent. and we followed suit. These sweeping reductions affected every holder of fixed obligations of any sort whatever, and whether we like the change or not the result of the general breakdown of international finance is that any fixed sum of money is worth just what the various Governments choose to ordain. It is a question of policy, changes being only restricted by the necessity of making as few changes as possible for the sake of avoiding confusion and keeping up the national commercial credit.

This was the meaning of Bishop Hall's remark a fortnight ago in his revolutionary speech to the League of Nations Union, that whereas "credit used to be an extension of currency, currency has now come to be an extension of credit." Just as there is, as was explained by the Hon. the Attorney-General, in introducing his "Ordinance to make provision for a levy on the salaries of public officers," a lag in the accommodation of prices to changes of facts. We need not go any further for an example than the draft Ordinance itself. It provides for (1) a graduated reduction of salaries by a cut in their sterling figure, and (2) an elastic variation in the rate at which their dollar equivalent is to be calculated, to be fixed every three months. These two methods of retrenchment are based on two conflicting principles. The former means that a definite contract is to be repudiated, and can only be justified on the ground that a mistake was made by those who entered into the contract by fixing the amount at a rate higher than the Colony could permanently afford to pay. It is of the nature of an act of bankruptcy. The latter method has a different significance altogether. It merely recognises indisputable facts—that the Treasurer cannot pay out more dollars than he receives, and that the purchasing power of the dollar in terms of the pound has changed. Practically all Governments have tampered with the income of their servants in the last few years, but it is the first sort of reduction that leaves a feeling of discontent and bad faith. His Excellency's explanation of the refusal to fix forward exchange—that the Government knew that a fall was coming—does not apply now that it has come, and if needs must all necessary balancing of budgets can be secured by fixing a conventional rate of exchange, though it would be unfair to put it too high without any additional taxation to equalise the sacrifice.

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. G. E. COSTELLO

This is the eighty-fifth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyas, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. George Edward Costello, the popular General Passenger Agent for the Canadian Pacific steamships.

Mr. Costello first came to the East in the summer of 1916, when he was sent direct from Canada to the Hong Kong office of the C.P.R. At that time the immigration laws in North America, both Canada and the United States, were far more liberal than in more recent years and the C.P.R. ships were taking Chinese emigrants by the thousand to Canada, the United States and the West Indies. Mr. Costello was specially assigned to direct and control this traffic.

C.P.R. Ships in War

At the time of his arrival in Hong Kong the Pacific service of the Company was being carried on by the Empress of Russia, the Empress of Asia, the old Empress of Japan and the Montevideo. Shortly after his arrival the ships were requisitioned for war purposes. The Empress of Asia and the Empress of Russia were converted, at the Kowloon Docks, into troopships and, when ready—in 1917—were sent to New York for the conveyance of American contingents to England, for service in France; while the other two ships were diverted to Vladivostok, there to take on board, for conveyance to Europe, Czechoslovakian prisoners of war captured by the Russians. Thus, for a period of eight months, the trans-Pacific service of the Company was entirely suspended.

Earthquake in Japan

In 1920 Mr. Costello was transferred to Yokohama, in charge of the Company's passenger department for Japan. Three years later he went through the terrible experience of the great earthquake and fire which wiped out Yokohama, with an appalling loss of life. The C.P.R. offices were completely wrecked and burnt and several of the C.P.R. staff were killed. Mr. Costello owes his life to the fact that he was on the wharf at the time, attending to the sailing of the Empress of Australia, which was the means of rescuing some 7,000 refugees from the fire which was sweeping the ruins of the city.

After this disaster the activities of the Company were moved to Yokohama, after making periodical visits to Yokohama to attend ships during some eight months, Mr. Costello was instrumental in re-establishing the offices there.

Bombing of Chapel

In 1928 Mr. Costello returned to Hong Kong in charge of the passenger department of the local office, serving here till 1930, when he was transferred to Shanghai, acting in a similar capacity. While in Shanghai he was a witness of the Japanese "war" of 1932 and saw the bombing and destruction of Chapel.

Early in 1934 Mr. Costello was appointed General Passenger Agent of the Comapany for the Orient, with headquarters in Hong Kong.

Mr. Costello is a member of the Hong Kong Club, the American Club, the Royal H.K. Golf Club and the Royal H.K. Yacht Club. He is also an enthusiastic Rotarian. His duties do not allow him much time for outdoor recreation, but such as he has he devotes to his favourite pursuit, golf, or lawn-bowls. He is "skip" of the Yacht Club team.

Everybody's Beverage for Health this Winter

In the majority of Homes throughout the World 'Ovaltine' is the favourite beverage for maintaining perfect physical fitness.

There is definitely nothing to equal 'Ovaltine' as the best safeguard against wintry conditions. 'Ovaltine' presents, in the most easily digestible form, every nutritive element required for building up the entire physical and nervous system.

Ask your dealer the present price of 'Ovaltine' in the new larger tins, which contain 18 ozs (large size) and 9 ozs (medium size). The increase of 25% in weight in these new sized tins makes 'Ovaltine' more economical than ever before. There is nothing "just as good" as the genuine 'Ovaltine' made in England. Reject substitutes.

OVALTINE
TONIC FOOD BEVERAGE

7APB18

MILK is a very important food for children, yet more than half the children in the world have to do without it. In Canada there is a cow for every two people.

The cow is the most important of domestic animals, and it gives milk to the people of North America, southern South America, northern Europe, India, South Africa and Australia.

In lands bordering on the Mediterranean, the goat is kept for giving milk, for goats are more easily kept than cows, while disease germs of hot countries do not multiply in goat's milk as they do in the milk of the cow.

In China

In China little milk is used, as at least two acres are necessary to grow enough for the cow, but there are many people in China, and those two acres are needed to raise enough to feed a whole family.

Rice takes the place of milk in China, Japan and other warm lands, while in equatorial regions of the Eastern Hemisphere, the milky liquid inside the coconut takes the place of cow's milk.

The cow is the most useful of all domestic animals and was probably one of the first to be tamed. We have no record of how early man captured the first cow. Did he capture and take home the calf while the mother followed?

Primitive man took a decided step towards civilisation when he first kept cows, for he now began to be a farmer as well as a hunter.

Women First Farmers

Keeping cows meant gathering hay for feeding the animals during the winter; and this gave less time and opportunity for roaming and hunting.

But it is more than likely that the women were the first farmers, staying at home in the winter to care for the cows and children, while their men-folk roamed and hunted as usual.

Before the white man came the Indian population in North America is said never to have numbered more than half a million. One reason for this was that the American continent had scarcely any wild animals that could be tamed for milking purposes. There were no wild cattle, and no sheep or goats on the plains; thus Indian children lacked a very necessary food, and many of them died because they were not strong enough to stand the hard life and the rigorous winter climate.

What a robber man is! Nature provided milk for the young of its kind, so that when we drink the milk of the cow the calf has to suffer.

Substitute For Cream

The farmer who sells milk or makes butter, either kills the calf for veal or raises it on a part of the milk robbed of cream. Balled flaxseed is sometimes added to the milk as a substitute for cream and even hay, tea is given the calf. But notice the difference in the calf on the ranch when it runs all summer with the mother and has a plentiful supply of whole milk. In the autumn it is as large as a 2-year-old raised by hand.

Milk is hard to keep, for in hot weather it sours in less than two days; while in cold weather the cow uses her nourishment to keep herself warm, thus reducing her supply of milk. Man has planned ways by means of which the products of milk are obtainable all the year round. From the cream he has made butter which can be kept for several weeks; and from the skim-milk he has made cheese, which lasts through a winter or summer season.

You may imagine that the cow in the pasture has her udder full of warm, white milk, but this is not so. If you were to open up the udder you would find only blood and water. This fluid is changed to milk as it is being drawn from the cow's teat, and a fast milker can see blood and water turning white in the pail as he milks.

Canning Industry

But man has also invented a means of keeping milk for any length of time and in any degree of heat. This is done by canning the milk. Of late years in Canada a large industrial business in canned milk has grown up, for in this form it is shipped in increasing quantities to hot countries, while it is also in great demand in the cities of Canada itself.

2. The camel furnishes rich milk to desert tribes.

3. In Italy the goat is taken into the building and milked on the spot to supply apartment dwellers. It is no uncommon sight to see the milkman there dragging the goat up three or four flights of stairs only to find that the customer does not need any milk on that day.

4. In Spain a can containing a coin is lowered from an upstairs window by the customer; the dairyman milks enough from the goat to fill the order and the milk is drawn up, often to the annoyance of the passer-by.

TRAINING the DOG

THERE are innumerable families who train dogs, if only because there are innumerable dogs who acquire families and train them. Usually the whole family begins by training the dog, and such training consists in adjuring other members not to feed it at meals or not to let it indulge in the process which is called "jumping up." All dogs, it seems, prefer to be fed at meals and at as many meals as there are, despite the dictum of one meal a day; and all dogs up to a certain age like jumping up. There are even some adventurers who have a nice taste in silk stockings and prefer them at the calf.

A coffee-coloured spaniel, aged six months and ingratiatingly small, may need to be trained. The daughter trains her on the highest principles, including exercise, the mysterious process known as "heel" and ultimately leading up to one meal a day.

Only Disadvantage

The only disadvantage is that she has many preoccupations and that days together may elapse when she has to depute the job to someone else. The mother holds that a quiet voice and not too much attention are all that is needed; she may also be strong on "Basket" and the process of inducing dogs to sit down, which consists in pushing up their chins instead of pressing down their rears.

Father knows that both the other members of his family are hopeless. He promotes "Walkie-walkie," has a stern voice of command; says "Heel" in season and out, the while his heart is wrung by the disregarding smile of his pupil. He gives her one meal a day, but, sure that she is hungry, supplements it himself, sternly forbidding the family and, above all, the kitchen, to do likewise.

In The End

In the end the dog gets trained, even if the family itself can only boast that her manners are perfect in the house. Gradually she ceases to "jump up" and visitors are no longer obliged to smile unwillingly at her antics. Gradually she does not walk at heel, but accommodates herself. But also by that time she is no longer young.

Almost in Confidence

Anna May Wong Off The Screen

MISS Anna May Wong drank tea with me this week; she came, a beautifully clad, slim, elegant figure; her Chinese face most subtly Chinese. I used to think the Chinese screen in the sitting-room served well to hide the iron bars of the window, but now it appeared only as a perfect background for Anna May; and the Kuan Yin smiled, content in her company, watching her gentle wrists and long, lovely fingers.

She came, tired from the climb of many steps, but smiling and friendly. She talked gaily, but with all the Chinese gentleness, telling us of Hollywood and of her travels. She lived a quiet life in Hollywood, she said; "if stars lived the life the public paint us to live we'd all be dead by now."

We spoke of Chaplin, of course, since he was another visitor to the Colony. She had met him at social functions; she admired him and spoke of him as the genius of the screen. I asked her of other stars and she said she had no actual favourites; she liked different actors and actresses in different roles. She admires Claudette Colbert, and Greta Garbo in some of her roles; Clark Gable she thinks excellent in the "straight," true-to-life roles. She likes, too, Ronald Colman and Maurice Chevalier, whom, incidentally, she knows personally. She claims that his charm is not only screen make-up, but is his real nature. Frank Lawton, she thinks, is the most promising of the younger stars. She loves Rene Clair's films with all their light whimsicalities—just things that come lightly and go without leaving any heaviness behind.

Anna May's special Hollywood friend is Una Merkel—a darling girl, she says; sympathetic, sincere, and as natural off the screen as on.

And Anna May Wong admires the work of her sister, Wong Ying, in the film "Eskimo." They are great pals, the two sisters, and it is pleasant to see them together.

All the while, as she sat there, I watched the picture with delight. For it was a picture. An elegant, sophisticated young woman dressed in the latest creations from Hollywood and yet in such perfect harmony with the Chinese background. So I feel it will not be difficult for her to find that harmony with

Colony's Great Loss

WHETHER Lady Southern leaves in six months or ten, she really is going to leave—and that is something to think about.

Lady Southern has taken an active part in so much of the life of the Colony that it is difficult to imagine things without her. She has put such a concentrated energy and interest into everything she has come into contact with here!

And what of Gambia? I don't know anything of the Gambian natives, nor anything of the white population settled there. But one thing is certain—before Lady Southern has been there many months Girl Guides and Boy Scouts will rally, the children will play more happily and will be well protected, and surely if I ever reach Gambia I shall lunch at the Women's International Club (of course there will be a Women's International Club). So I shall surely feel quite at home in Gambia!

At all events we do hope Lady Southern will be as happy there as she will surely be busy.

THE rise in the temperature last week has not yet had time fully to thaw our social activities, and we have now reached the stage of wondering every morning whether we shall take the overcoat or not. Almost inevitably we do the wrong thing. Just as we did at the first extra race meeting. The horses manage to defeat the public every time. The general philosophy of the race fan setting forth on Saturday week was that owing to the bad going there would be more upsets than anything else, and the tote figures showed that most people had tried to be too clever and had carefully avoided the "sure things" that were sticking out.

The "daily double" was the easiest money for a long time, and the figure—$61.70—showed what a large number of patrons had ignored the obvious.

Charlie Chan

THERE must be some general cause for the long list of prominent cinema performers who are honouring us with an inspection. Mr. Warner Oland is in private life very like his own self on the screen, quiet and observant. His box-office value has been built up by no sudden brilliancy of conquest, but by a prudent concentration on one type of presentation, which allows people to know beforehand what they may expect to see when they find his name in the cast. In this the cinema is following the precedent set by the novel, as in several other respects. There was a revulsion of feeling against the very long novel, which had actually many advantages over the short novel, by dispensing with the necessary descriptions and introductions that must be given in order that the plot may be understood, and which took up an inordinate amount of space when space was limited. The novelist met the difficulty very cleverly by splitting up the long book into a number of short ones connected up with each other by identity of one or more of the principal characters. Balzac no doubt opened up the way, followed by Zola, and the most recent famous instance has been Galsworthy's "Forsyte Saga." The new idea fitted very well into the requirements of the monthly magazine, and Dr. Conan Doyle blazed the trail for the aerial detective story with the most successful of all, Sherlock Holmes, and his "elementary, my dear Watson, elementary." In taking the hint for his cinema work Mr. Oland showed sound judgment, and his films, quaintly enough, have only had to compete with a resuscitated Sherlock which shows no trace of the quiet subtlety of the original.

Oriental Local Colour

BUT there is also a new element of connoisseurship in knowledge of the Orient, due to the modern urge to travel, which demands that there shall be a higher standard of realism in the portrayal of Eastern ways, and a new interest in the Orient itself. Commercial contact and competition is, as usual, acting both ways. The European and the Oriental realise that the next stage of the world's history will require a knowledge of the methods of future competitors that were hardly dreamed of a few years ago, and that such knowledge must include acquaintance with each other's culture as well as with the showman's samples. For practical purposes it used to be quite enough to pay a cursory visit to San Francisco's Chinatown. The Chinese restaurant keeper could be inroduced as a comic character making absurd remarks and resorting to some simple trickery to raise a laugh. That sort of thing, as Mr. Harold Lloyd discovered, will not do for Chinese audiences at all, and it has become vieux jeu for Europeans. We have the odd spectacle of actors like Mr. Oland, and actresses like Miss Anna May Wong, coming East for the first time to see whether their characterisation has any similarity to the originals that they have been representing. The result should be beneficial both to the actors themselves, to the public who will no longer get false impressions, and to the producers who will be able to add an Oriental public who will no longer be bored with scenes that they only see to be amused at absurd mistakes. The position is something like what used to be the ordinary thing with the early American films of English scenes when one looked for absurdities as quite natural and pardonable.

Misrepresentations

THE history of the cinema has shown that the public will not take instruction directly given as such. But the amount of understanding of foreign countries that may be imparted as background to a good story is limitless. The films are already international in going round the world, and they will have to become international in their sympathies. All the early American films introduced an Englishman either as a ninny with an impossible accent, or as a hopeless snob or as a crook. Naturally this did not attract patronage. But one had to remember that fifty years ago the villain of an English melodrama was always a foreigner, and usually a Frenchman. One film, in a scene supposed to be a dance in the drawing-room of a 'dual house' in Piccadilly, had a bar in one corner with a barmaid dishing out drinks. A meet at a country house showed the huntsman in long trousers and a cloth cap. Even now when it is desired to show an English scene it is customary by some thin device to take over an American family, who behave as they would in New York. Douglas Fairbanks showed a film record of a visit to "China" in which streets of Tientsin, Shanghai, and Hong Kong were all mixed up together in one reel. All this will soon be quite outmoded.

Sports Chatter

Ballard Going Home
CPL. BALLARD, the Army medium-to-fast bowler, will be leaving the Colony by the troopship Neuralla on April 1. Ballard has played for the Army in the League and Triangular Tournament cricket matches as well as for the Royal Army Service Corps in the Small Units Cricket competition. In addition to being a very steady bowler, he can also be a very stubborn bat if the occasion demands.

Duffy Davis Takes It Easy
MR. W. H. S. DAVIS, whose unfortunate accident at Fanling prevented him from riding at the Annual Race Meeting, was a keen spectator at the First Extra Race Meeting. He is at present staying at Fanling, where he is having a quiet rest, but he hopes to be in the saddle again at Happy Valley meetings before long.

Capt. Trimble Leaving
THE Royal Army Medical Corps will be losing Capt. Trimble, one of their League cricketers, very shortly. I understand that Capt. Trimble will be proceeding home by the troopship Neuralla, which is due to sail from the Colony on April 1.

Another Army Cricket Setback
ANOTHER R.A.M.C. cricketer will also be leaving by the Neuralla. He is Pte. Saunders who is one of the all-rounders in the team. His best scores, however, have not been made in the Hong Kong Cricket League matches but in the Small Units games.

Medicals Losing All-Rounder
L/CPL. SNOOKS, who has played cricket with considerable success for the R.A.M.C. in the Second Division of the Cricket League, will be leaving for home shortly by the Neuralla. He usually opens the bowling for the Medicals, together with L/Cpl. Apps, while he is also a member of their football team in the Third Division of the League.

Promising Novice Boxer
IT is not perhaps generally known that Pte. Herbert, the Army wicket-keeper, is also a useful boxer. He recently figured in the East Lancashire Regiment tournament in the welterweight division and is regarded as one of their most promising novices.

Green Favoured For Title
PTE. GREEN, a newcomer to the team, is expected to capture the heavyweight title for them at the forthcoming Hong Kong Area Championships. He won the heavyweight title at the Battalion tournament recently and, prior to coming to Hong Kong, he did quite a lot of boxing at home.

MARTIN, who plays for Wolverhampton and has been capped several times for Ireland, learned his football with the Rifles. At the age of 16 he has played for the Battalion Senior team in Belfast.

Tribute To Rumjahn

MR. W. SABIN, of California, who, together with Mr. Gene Smith, winner of the Philippine Islands' All-Comers Singles Lawn Tennis championship, won the Philippines' Doubles title, left the Colony last week for America. Before leaving he paid a compliment to the Colony's leading Doubles players, the Rumjahn cousins, whom he said were a very steady pair with a fine variety of strokes.

Leonard Takes To Hockey

DAVID LEONARD, the St. Joseph's soccer player, has taken up hockey and plays a useful game on the right wing. With a little more knowledge of the game, he should be able to get into one of the Mamak teams next year.

Kwok's Military Career

KWOK CHUN-HANG, the Melbourne Centenary, Interport and Colony Breast-Stroke swimming champion, has entered Fuh Tan University at Kiang-wan, Shanghai, where he will probably take up a military course. This will seriously interfere with his future swimming progress, although it will not hamper him in any way from representing China at the Berlin Games.

H.K. Area Sports

THE annual Hong Kong Area athletic meeting, which is the only organised athletic meeting other than the Volunteers sports and school sports meetings, will commence on the Polo Ground, Boundary Street, Kowloon, tomorrow, and will conclude on Tuesday. The meeting will be run on the inter-team lines.

Inter-School Football
MY recent paragraph on Inter-School football in these columns bore fruit at the bi-monthly meeting of the H.K. Referees' Association recently, when the Secretary proposed that the Association do everything possible to help the schools, pending approval by the H.K.F.A. Should the Referees' Association have control of the games, it will do much to instil into the youngsters a cleaner spirit than at present prevails.

Rifles' Nursery
THE RIFLES intend using the Third Division of the local soccer League as a training ground for their youngsters and the majority of their players will be beginners with one or two of the older players to guide them. Sgt. Dominy, a veteran player, is at present playing for them and Sgt. Ferguson, another old-timer, has also promised to help the youngsters along.

McQuire At Portsmouth
MCQUIRE, the Navy soccer pivot two seasons ago, is now playing for Portsmouth depot.

H.K.C.C. Loss

A. C. GROWDER, the slow leg-break bowler whose delivery closely resembles that of Arthur Mailey, and who had a very successful season with the H.K.C.C. first eleven, has left the Colony for Singapore.

East Lancs' Athletic Hopes
THE East Lancashire Regiment will be well represented in the approaching Hong Kong Area Athletic Sports, and in the sprint events they will be depending mainly on Cpl. Gregson, Cpl. McCarthy, Pte. Williams and Pte. Robinson, though they also have a number of other promising athletes who will be taking part in the sports.

Two Matches In One Afternoon
PTE. WHITEHEAD, the Army cricketer, had the unique experience of playing in two cricket matches in one afternoon recently. He was playing for his Regiment, the East Lancs., on the I.R.C. ground, and after he had had his innings he went over to the Army ground, which is just next to the I.R.C., and played for the Army against the University.

Water-Polo Enthusiasts
CHIEF Petty Officer Britton of H.M.S. Delight, is a very keen water-polo player and, in conjunction with Stoker Bennett of the same ship, is building up a team from among the crew.

COMPANY MEETING

VEHICULAR FERRY SERVICE

TO BE AUGMENTED IN JUNE

SUCCESSFUL YEAR REVIEWED

Providing at the twelfth annual meeting of shareholders of the Hong Kong and Yau-mat Ferry Co. Ltd., yesterday morning, Mr. Lau Tak-po, the managing director, said that the company had had a very successful year, thanks mainly to the increased traffic during the Jubilee celebrations.

Supporting Mr. Lau were the following members of the board of directors: Dr. Kwan Sum-yin, Messrs. Wong Ping-suen, Chan Kam-yung, Young Teun-dart, the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Dr. F. H. Kew and Mr. Wong Choi-hoo.

Chairman's Speech

Addressing the meeting Mr. Lau said:—
"I am happy to say that we have had a successful year owing to increased traffic receipts during the Jubilee celebrations and to the large number of people from the neighbouring provinces taking advantage of the extremely low river steamer fares to visit the Colony."

"We have also been able by careful management to keep our operating and docking expenses down to the minimum, especially by the conclusion of contracts for fuel and supplies at favourable rates both for 1935 and 1936."

"Since the date of the last meeting, the order for the fourth Vehicle Ferry has been placed with the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Co. Ltd., at a very favourable rate of exchange, and the builders are now rapidly pushing forward with its construction. It is hoped to launch the vessel at an early date and to have her in regular service in the early part of June. With this new vessel, it will be possible to operate a regular and uninterrupted vehicular service throughout the day and it may even be possible to extend this service up to 2 a.m."

Bright Outlook
"The low rate of the Hong Kong dollar will have the effect of sending up the operating costs but it also appears to have revived the factories on the mainland as it is now possible for them to compete successfully in the foreign markets. The reopening of these factories will mean the re-employment of large numbers of people, and we feel that with the further improvement in the service, the traffic receipts will at least be maintained and that the Company will, on the whole, share in the prosperity of the Colony."

"During the year under review the Government has effected a number of alterations and additions to the ferry piers and it is hoped that it will be possible for the boats to use the piers without causing any damage to them."

The Report and Accounts were seconded by Mr. So Ho-yue and were carried unanimously.

Election Of Directors
The following were elected Directors for the year 1936:—The Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Dr. Kwan Sum-yin, and Messrs. Young Teun-dart, Frederick Howard Kew, Wong Ping-suen, Kwok Chuen, Wong Kwok-shuen, Chan Kam-yung and Choy Wei-hung.

The Dividend Warrants will be obtainable from the Company's Head Office on the Jubilee Street Ferry Pier as from tomorrow.

THE HONG KONG SINGERS

Secular Concert On Wednesday

INTERESTING PROGRAMME ARRANGED

The Hong Kong Singers are giving a secular concert, in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, No. 22 Hennessy Road, Wanchai, in the hall of that institution on Wednesday next, at 9 p.m., the programme for which is published below. The cause is very worthy and estimable and the Hong Kong Singers, of course, need no introduction to local audiences.

In addition to the heavy work which they already have in preparation, it can be seen that no pains have been spared to select musical items worthy of the reputation they enjoy. In this connection special note should be taken of Parry's delightful "Come, Pretty Wag, and Sing" and John Benet's 6-part "Orlando" Madrigal, "All Creatures now are Merry-minded." Mr. J. Anderson Miller will conduct.

New Soloists

The soloists have been selected from the members of the Hong Kong Singers, and none has taken part in any of their previous concerts. Mrs. H. L. Shaw (contralto) has not been heard in the Colony as a soloist before. She is a gifted singer with a voice of exceptional beauty, and will no doubt be greatly in demand at local concerts in the future. Mrs. R. C. S. Bates has a fine soprano voice and is also a newcomer.

Both Dr. L. T. Ride and Mr. A. V. Sanders are well known as artistic singers and never fail to please their audiences. Dr. Ride will sing Stanford's renowned cycle "Songs of the Sea," assisted by the Choir, which should be one of the best items of the evening.

Mr. Solomon Bard made a great impression by his beautiful violin playing at the Helena May concert on Thursday last, and there are many who no doubt will miss this opportunity of hearing him again.

Special interest is given to the programme by the introduction of a short item of Chinese music, which will be under the direction of Mr. Yau Hok-chau.

The accompanying will be shared by Mesdames Genevieve Eveille and Irene Miller and Mr. E. O'Neill Shaw.

In order to avoid disappointment tickets should be obtained early. They can be had at the price of $2 (reserved) and $1 (unreserved) from The Anderson Music Co., Ice House Street.

Programme

The following is the programme:

Ballet—"Now is the Month of Maying" Morley.

Solo—"To Spring" Gounod.

Mrs. R. C. S. Bates.

Madrigal—"Come Let us Join the Roundelay" Beale.

Air—"Come again, Sweet Love" Dowland.

Dashing Juan Ignacio Pantoja, a Spanish aviator, who flew the Atlantic to gain his childhood sweetheart, Maria Elena Rivero, finally stands at the altar in Madrid, Spain, despite the absence of the bride's mother, who refused to give her blessing.

"Y" LOSE VALUABLE MEMBER

Mr. Bond Leaves For England

The European Y.M.C.A. lost one of its leading personalities yesterday morning with the departure for England of Mr. W. G. Bond, popularly known to his many friends as "Bondy."

There were many friends to bid him bon voyage on the s.s. Corfu. A keen follower of sports, he was always ready to render a helping hand in Y.M.C.A. functions, while he was very well known at the many Chinese swimming clubs of the Colony.

He is going to Devonport first for two months, before proceeding to his home at Bitterne, Southampton.

LOCAL JOCKEY INJURED

Knocked Down By Private Car

NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

Mr. Ip Kuei-ying, the well-known local jockey, was involved in a motor accident in Queen's Road Central, outside the Asia Life Building, at about 11 a.m. yesterday. His injuries, were, fortunately, of a slight nature and, though Mr. Ip was in considerable pain at the time, it is not thought that he will be prevented from taking part at the Second Extra Race Meeting next Saturday.

Details of the accident are very meagre, but it is understood that Mr. Ip, who was returning to his office at the time, was crossing the road when a private motor vehicle, travelling from east to west, hit him with the off mudguard and knocked him to the ground. A few friends who happened to be passing at the time picked Mr. Ip up and helped him to his office, where his injuries were attended to. He was bruised on the thigh, while his ankle was also injured.

PRETTY WEDDING AT UNION CHURCH

CLARK—NAYLOR

HONEYMOON TO BE SPENT AT MACAU

A very pretty wedding was solemnised at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, yesterday, the contracting parties being Mr. Goscombe Goddard Clark, of the Hong Kong Police, son of the late Mr. Clarke and Mrs. G. W. Cockle of Wenhaston, Suffolk, and Miss Joyce Cudgin Naylor, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Naylor of No. 59d, Wong Nei Cheong Road.

The Rev. Mackenzie Dow officiated.

The bride presented a very pretty picture as she entered the Church on the arm of her father. She wore a gown of ivory satin, cut in classical lines, with a lovely tulle veil held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations with fern, and was attended by Miss Yvonne Shaw, who wore a dress of pink taffeta, trimmed with silver lamo, with a muff and cap to match, and who carried a bouquet of forget-me-nots. The best man was Mr. E. Willerton, also of the Hong Kong Police.

Mrs. Naylor, the bride's mother, wore a dress of heavy brown corded silk with hat and shoes to match. After the church ceremony a reception was held in the Gloucester Hotel and later the happy couple left for Macau, where the honeymoon is being spent. Mrs. Clarke's going away dress was a grey costume with accessories to match.

THE PASSING HOUR
 IN England we expect startling views to originate from laymen, most of whom have no ecclesiastical predilections, and we anticipate that in due course the Bishop of the diocese will pour oil on troubled waters by reminding the innovators of the wisdom of the ages. In Hong Kong the position is reversed. Bishop Hall has a way of dropping bombs into the not too rapid stream of local reflection that make us wonder whether we have indeed read history for naught, and drawn from our cabled news conclusions that are the very reverse of wisdom. We would not have it otherwise, for all conclusions are subject to revision in a world that is changing so rapidly that we must busy ourselves in trying to understand the drift of events if we are not to be left behind.

ARE ARMAMENTS FOR USE?

"I am not afraid of the new armaments because I do not think they will ever be used in a major war." Have we really lived through the last 20 years in vain? That is exactly what used to be said 40 years ago when the German Army was being gradually extended to include the whole nation; and for a long time it appeared to be true. Both Kaiser Wilhelm and Bismarck used to assure us that the object was to be strong enough to keep the peace, because a weak ally with open frontiers was a provocation to marauders. In the search for the cause of the last "major war," with materials almost too abundant, there has been a gradual discarding of all the superficial explanations based on this or that event of the last few months, and the best and most thoughtful historians have come to almost a unanimous agreement that the true explanation was that the great military machines had been so elaborated that they had become an end in themselves, and had absorbed so much of the national income and activity that it had grown to be a question whether they could any longer be supported by the civil taxpayer. Faced with the need for retrenchment it was found that the machine had become too strong to be guided, and it ended by running away with the nation. There was not one Prime Minister or Ambassador who was in favour of war, but they were powerless to control the machine they had created. What we see is the early stages of a similar development in Germany, and there is no ground for thinking that the Fuehrer would have more control than his predecessors.
 Armaments will never be allowed to perish through rust.

THE POWER OF FEAR

"I don't believe that it is fear that is responsible for what has happened." What is the reason for the unrest of all the countries of Central Europe?
 These countries are practically starving themselves to feed their armies because they are convinced that unless they do they cannot resist invasion by Germany following the phantom of a German
 "Mittel Europa" which gave such impetus to militarism in days gone by. History forbids them to forget what has happened before.
 And even if there be no exact repetition of the course of history, are there no other kinds of fear?
 These armaments "will be used," says the Bishop, "as threats to secure advantageous trade agreements." Exactly. Note that if the agreements were mutually advantageous there would be no need for the threat of armaments. If they are enforced by such threats, they are the outcome of fear, for signature will be entering into a condition of inferiority that means they will be working for the stronger nation and not for themselves. They will, when an opportunity occurs, fight for freedom.

NATIONAL SOCIALISM
 PERHAPS, quite rightly the Bishop ignores British interests, for he is contemplating the world in a disinterested sort of way, to find what may be the best solution of world problems.
 It stands to reason that economic nationalism hits us more than anyone else, for it hits marine transport and manufacture for

(By the Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

HOW often has one heard the remark, "Of course Pilate had no chance. If he had known who the Prisoner was, he would never have condemned Him."
 That is not the point. Pilate stood in his capacity as Governor, to administer Roman justice, the fairest and most impartial thing in the world, the proud boast of the Empire. Prince or peasant could be sure of a fair trial.
 Christ never asked Pilate to acknowledge that He was God. He strove to make him be true to the high ideals for which he stood.
 When He stood before the High Priest and later Herod, "He answered not a word," but He literally fought for Pilate's soul. For a moment Pilate saw the truth—that the Man before Him was something more than man, and that He had been accused through malice and hatred. Deliberately he went out and told the people,
 "I find no fault with Him," thereby reversing the verdict of the Sanhedrin; and, if justice had been done, the Prisoner at that moment should have been released.

Then suddenly, amidst the uproar, the infuriated mob mentioned the word "Galilee," and Pilate thought of a way of escape; finding that He was a Galilean and Herod, the Ruler of that province, being in Jerusalem at the time, Pilate thought that he might shift the responsibility on to the Tetrarch's shoulders. So Christ was promptly sent to Herod's palace.

Herod, the gross sensualist, had heard of the Prophet of Nazareth, and had wanted to meet Him. He was always out to find some new sensation. So little did he understand the character of the One Who stood before him, that he expected Him to roll up His sleeves and do a conjuring trick. Christ had no tricks for Herod, only the Truth, and that was the last thing Herod wanted. Having mocked Him, he sent Him back once more to Pilate.

The Fatal Decision
 You can't hand Truth over to the crowd and expect to get away with it. Pilate had to decide, and decide there and then, two fates—of the Prisoner, and his own. He thought he would appeal to the pity of the crowd. He ordered the Prisoner therefore to be scourged; and when He was led back before the mob He was wearing a crown of thorns and a purple robe—the rough jest of the soldiery to One Who had said that He was a King.

The mob had no pity. Still they yelled for His blood. Then Pilate remembered the ancient Passover custom, by which he was able to release one prisoner, whomsoever export. But let us put that on one side. Let us suppose that every nation has reached the stage of making for itself all that can possibly be made within its own territory. Let us also put on one side all the theoretical arguments of the Cobdenite variety, which aimed more at solid comfort than at national development of the weaker trade units. They were perfectly sound on a purely economic basis, but that is not the only possible basis. It still remains true that there is no country in the world that can produce and work up all that is necessary for a high standard of life. In order to get rid of international trade altogether—if that is a good ideal—a lowering of the comforts and ornaments of life would be required, so drastic that it would produce permanent internal discontent. All these schemes mean that civilised countries would have to give up much of the gains of civilisation. Even now, Germans are restricted in their travels, and cannot draw out more than a very limited amount of cash to pay their way, as we saw when the visitors to London for the International Football match were limited to 30 shillings.
 Every such restriction means a new control by some man vested with irresistible power over the lives, the tastes and the wishes of the individual.

It has won its way across the world of time and space, and wherever it has been uplifted, in every land and every clime, the Victim Who was nailed to it on the first Good Friday has been exalted as Redeemer and King.

The Death Warrant
 It is not generally known that,
 apart from that of the Gospels, there is a genuine account of the Crucifixion. In the year 1810 the Commissioners of Arts of the French Army were excavating in the ancient city of Aquila, in Italy.
 One day they came upon an exquisite antique marble vase, covered on the side with Hebrew characters. When translated it was found to be "The Death Warrant of Jesus Christ."

Here is the translation of the warrant: "Sentence rendered by Pontius Pilate, acting Governor of Lower Galilee, ordering that Jesus of Nazareth shall suffer death upon the Cross."

"In the year 17 of the Emperor Tiberius Caesar, and the 27th day of March, in the city of the Holy Jerusalem, Annas and Caiaphas being Priests, seditious of the people of God. The great and notorious evidence of the people being: 1. Jesus is a Jewer. 2.
 He is seditious. 3. He calls himself falsely the Son of God. 4. He is the enemy of Law. 5. He calls himself falsely the King of Israel.
 6. He entered into the Temple followed by a multitude bearing palm branches in their hands.
 Orders the First Centurion Quirinus Cornelius to lead him to the place of execution."

The witnesses are:—

1. Daniel Robani, a Pharisee.
2. Joannus Robani.
3. Raphael Robani.
4. Capet, a citizen.

"Jesus shall go out out of the city of Jerusalem by the gate of—"
 The words were engraved on a copper plate, on the reverse of which is the information "A similar plate is sent to each tribe."
 But so far no other has been discovered.

SHARE MARKET

Messrs. Harriman's
Weekly Report

Messrs. G. A. Harriman and Co.'s weekly share report and market review issued at noon yesterday states:—

The Political situation was not at all bright at the beginning of the week and had a general dampening effect on market operations consequently trading was somewhat sluggish and with the exception of offsetting for settlement accounts, which is now out of the way, there was just a mild investment business passing — with however a decided turn for the better in the European situation the volume of trading at once began to increase and towards the close of the week buying orders were renewed in all sections of the market, but sellers were reluctant to deal at the low levels ruling and scrip was consequently not very plentiful, and it would appear that a considerable increase in prices must be forthcoming before holders will part with any reasonable quantity of shares.
 Investment counters held their own very well and were in steady demand throughout. Wharves were in constant demand around $92, and Hong Kong Lands were wanted at $20. Hong Kong Trams were off colour and were sold down to $10.60. Star Ferries were quiet with shares obtainable at $84. Hong Kong Electric were the medium of a considerable turnover at rates between 52 1/2 and 53 1/2, closing in demand at $52. Hong Kong Telephones (old) held persistent enquiries with business done up to $25.25 and further buyers at $25.10.
 Dairy Farms advanced with strong enquiries to $19.50 buyers (ex dividend of $1.00 just paid).
 Minor issues attracted more attention at these levels and Hotels changed hands in quantity at $4.10 cash and $4.20 May delivery.
 China Lights firmed up to $10.65 during the middle of the week but a large block of shares were taken off the market yesterday at $10.50. Cements after being dormant firmed up to a buying rate of $7.30 cash and $8.20 May delivery at the close after having changed hands at $7.25/60 earlier on. Providents (old) were a wide market fluctuating from $1.10 to $1.42 1/2 during the week, closing in demand at $1.80. Mining shares continued to attract more attention — however — a good business was done in Antamoks at $1.86/2 1/2 cash and $2.20 May.
 Baguio Gold had sales reported at 20/21 cents. Benguet Exploration at 17 cents and United Para-scales at 58 cents. Sterling stocks remained unchanged with Hong Kong Banks in demand at $1.855, and Unions around $850. The tone of the market at the close is very steady with rates in favour of buyers and more activity is anticipated after the Settlement, furthermore there is no doubt, that with a 'settled Europe' and a public prepared to kill the word 'depression' for all we know we may be entering a new era of prosperity and coupled with China's improving trade it appears to be only a matter of time.

Business during the week has been done at the following prices:
 H.K. Banks $1555/1560.
 H.K. Fires $250.
 Unions $560/562 1/2.
 Antamoks $1.86/2 1/2.
 Baguio Gold 20/21 cts.
 United Paracales 58 cts.
 Benguet Explorations 17 cts.
 Hotels $4.05/4.10.
 Lights (old) $10 1/4/10.65.
 Lights (new) $7 1/4/7 1/2.
 Cements $7 1/4/7.60.
 Dairy Farms $19.15/19 1/4 Ex.
 Div.
 Providents (old) $1.10/1.42 1/2.
 H.K. Trams $10 1/4/10 1/2.
 Telephones (old) $24.80/25.25.
 Telephones (new) $9/9.15.
 Sinceres $1 1/2.
 H.K. Electric $52.35/53 1/2.
 H.K. Lands $29.
 Realty $4.45/4.60.
 Ewos $38.

THE Hon. Sir William Shenton will be the guest of honour at a farewell tea party to be given by members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and Association at the Gloucester Hotel on Wednesday next at 5.15 p.m.

His many friends will be interested to learn that the house which Dr. F. J. Farr, the radiologist in the Medical Department, is building at Deep Water Bay will soon be ready for occupation. It will be called "Deep Water" and Dr. Farr intends moving in some time in May.

Mr. R. K. Valentine, assistant sub-manager of Messrs. Dodwell & Co., Ltd., went home on leave recently. He will join Mrs. Valentine and family in England and will return to the Colony towards the end of the year, accompanied by Mrs. Valentine.

It is understood that among the impending changes of command in the vessels belonging to the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company is one, that will bring Capt. Pettigrew of the s.s. Tak Sang to the s.s. Kum Sang.

Sgt. Pilkinton, of the Police Force, who was attached to the Shamshui Police Station before he went on leave nine months ago, is due to return to the Colony in about a week's time, though it is not yet known where he will be posted when he resumes duty.

Mr. Lee Wai-tong, captain of the South China Athletic Association team which won the Senior Shield from the Police last Sunday, was the guest of honour at a dinner party given by members of the Association at the Kam Loong Restaurant last Sunday night. Others present at the function included members of the winning team.

PERSONALIA.

Billie Greene, left, the son of Mr. G. W. Greene of G. W. Greene & Co., seems to be in a very happy mood. He is seen here with his cousins, Page and Mary Lee Rankin, centre and right respectively. (King's Studio).

MR. Duncan McNeill, the well-known local barrister, left the Colony on retirement last Saturday. He is proceeding to England, where he will settle down. Mr. McNeill was called to the Bar in 1889 and was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Hong Kong as long ago as 1895.

Mr. C. N. Sherman, delegate for China of the Nestle and Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Co., arrived in the Colony last week by the s.s. Athos II. Mr. Sherman will be remaining in the local office for about two weeks, prior to returning to Europe.

Mr. Van Dorschen, who is connected with the Netherlands Harbour works, is due to arrive in the Colony on the 26th inst. We understand that Mr. Van Dorschen is making one of his periodical visits to the Hong Kong office.

A charming camera study of Miss Noreen Cooper, who is one of the most popular members of Hong Kong's younger set. (King's Studio).

AFTER a stay of about six years in the Colony, Mr. D. Harvey, popularly known to a large circle of friends as "Dave," of Messrs. Dodwell & Co., Ltd., will be proceeding to Kobe on transfer in the very near future. It is understood that Mr. Harvey will be leaving early in April.

Miss B. Gough, who was on the teaching staff of King's College, is now with the Bolillos Girls' School, where she was transferred only last Monday.

Mrs. B. D. Evans, wife of Mr. Evans of the Royal Observatory, Kowloon, will be going away for a holiday in England on April 4, by the s.s. Ranchi. Mr. Evans will join her at home towards the end of next year and they will return to the Colony together after Mr. Evans' nine months' leave.

Mr. B. H. Church, the Government Marine Surveyor, will be amongst the many Civil Servants going away on the s.s. Ranchi, which sails on April 4. He will be away from the Colony for nine months.

Traffic Sergeant McInnes, attached to the Central Police Station, will shortly be going away on leave. He will be travelling to England via Canada.

Mr. L. G. Stephens, of the Royal Naval Dockyard Police, is due to go on home leave shortly but before doing so he will be married to Miss Winnie George of No. 233 Prince Edward Road, Kowloon. They will then go on to England, where the honeymoon will be spent.

Mr. A. Spary of the Public Works Department, accompanied by his wife and family, returned to the Colony by the s.s. Naldera last Thursday after having been away for about nine months.

THE FANLING HUNT

Big Field Gathers At Mai Po

THE Fanling Hounds met at Mai Po last Sunday, where a very big field was gathered to keep the appointment. Those present included Miss Alabaster, Lt.-Comdr. Alexander, Major Alston, Mr. Amps, Flight-Lieut. Anderson, Mrs. Anderson, Major and Mrs. Annesley, Miss Annesley, Mr. Archer, Mrs. Bathurst, Col. Bird, Miss Bird, Miss Beavis, Miss Cartor, Mrs. Coltart, Mr. Challinor, Capt. Clarke, Mr. Fraser, Miss Gorrard, Mrs. Joseph, Mrs. Keary, Miss Lord, Mr. Marson, Dr. Macgown, Miss Monkton, Mr. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Paton, Capt. and Mrs. Portman, Miss Mary Smalley, Mrs. St. Clair Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Stanton, Capt. Waller, Mr. Wood, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Winkfield. Captain Fennell, who has been such an able Huntsman, will be much missed by all followers of the Fanling Hunt. He left the Colony last week, having finished his tour here. His place has been taken by Mr. H. de B. Pritchard, who is hunting hounds very competently.

One Lady Thrown

The field moved up the road and, turning off to the left, started hunting. It was a fine run of 25 minutes over some good country, hounds going well. The line skirted Pine Tree Hill, leaving it on the left, and worked a large right-handed circle, along the slopes of Snowdon, to finish on a small hill opposite Hadden Hill.

There were several big open ditches in the course of this run. Miss Lord's pony swerved aside at one and threw her. Ziang is always troublesome to catch and Miss Lord had rather a long walk. Miss Smalley also had a little trouble in a paddy field, but she was able to hold her pony.

After the check the field went through Saddle Pass, a good number going on too far to the right, as the line was picked up on Hadden Hill, bearing slightly left-handed from Saddle Pass. Hounds crossed the River Dna at the end of the ridge and made for Fir Hill. Hounds were being badly ridden over about here, and nearly half the pack was soon outstripped by those members of the Hunt who appear to wonder why they have the "dogs" at all.

Skirting the Golf Links, hounds ran to Mid Hill, where the line finished. These were two very long and good hunts.

Wednesday's Meet

The Meet on Wednesday was at Sheung Shui Crossroads, where a field of about 30 gathered. There was only one line, laid by Mr. Potts, it having been arranged to look for a fox during the latter half of the afternoon.

Hounds moved off up the Frontier Road until the River Indus had been crossed. They then picked up the line on the left of the road and ran in a small left-handed circle to cross the road again near Orb Hill. They skirted Orb Hill, leaving it on their left, and made another small right-handed circle crossing the road again, then running up the very steep side of Table Hill to finish on the top. This was a short but good run, with nice grassland some of the way. It was quite uneventful and there were no mishaps.

Thinning Field

There was a long wait at the check as the hounds had gone

Miss E. Witchell, of Kowloon, another very popular member of the younger set, is a member of the office staff at the University. (King's Studio).

MR. Edgar Lewis, the well-known local bullion broker, who left the Colony by the s.s. Rawalpindi on March 7, has already arrived in England! Mr. Lewis left the boat at Singapore and continued his trip by plane, arriving at Croydon last Monday night.

Comdr. O. Orr-Ewing, Staff Officer, Observation, attached to the Commodore's Office, will be leaving the Colony for home on April 1. Mrs. Orr-Ewing will be accompanying him. We understand that this popular Naval officer will be spending a short holiday in England, though he has not yet any idea where his next appointment will take him.

Little John Davis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Davis, of Ava Mansions, May Road. The bonny youngster was only 17 months old at the time this picture was taken. (King's Studio).

with second horses to North Gap, and it took some time to fetch them. During the wait most of the field gradually went home in groups of twos and threes; so that when hounds moved off to look for a fox they were only accompanied by nine of the original field. These were Mr. Amps, Colonel Bird, Miss Bird, Miss Carter, Dr. Macgown, Master Martin Seth-Smith, Mrs. Rybot, Miss Walker and Mr. Winkfield. Major and Mrs. Alston joined hounds later.

They went down from Table Hill and worked up the valleys on to Crown Ridge. Hounds found here and spoke to it nicely, but scent was poor and they could not follow it any distance. They feathered over the hills and picked up short lines here and there, but sport was disappointing.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Enjoyable Dance At U.S.R.C.

NOTICEABLE ABSENCE OF SHAMROCKS

A DANCE was held at the U.S.R.C. last Tuesday night to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. It was very well attended and was a great success. But in spite of the occasion there was a noticeable absence of an Irish atmosphere, and not even one piece of shamrock was to be seen. Green dresses were not particularly in evidence either, although there were quite a few.

One of the prettiest in that colour was worn by Mrs. Weldon. It was of a pale olive crepe with velvet shoulder straps of a darker shade. Mrs. Campbell also chose green, hers being a deep bottle. It was cut in a straight line across the neck, and ornamented at the waist with a very handsome half-hoop of "jewels" in a golden setting. Mrs. Clegg-Hill's frock was of a particularly pretty flowered silk material, with a matching coat with long sleeves. She must have been very glad of this in the sitting-out marquees where, in spite of electric fires, it was inclined to be rather chilly on bare backs. Mrs. Lewis was also in a flowered frock, which looked very gay and pretty.

Other Frocks

The Morris sisters were there, Miss Sylvia Morris in a pale green lace dress, and her sister in black velvet, set off most effectively by a set of turquoise jewellery, consisting of a necklace, clip and studded bracelet. Miss Jeffries was in a party with her fiancé. She wore a pale pink lace frock, decorated at the shoulders and on the lower part of the skirt with stiff pink muslin pleating. Miss Pamela Dodwell was looking very smart in a royal blue dress, supported by a diamond strip down the middle of her back. She wore a royal blue ribbon in her hair.

Talking of hair decorations, we wonder if the lady sporting three toy Japanese umbrellas in her coiffure is following a new fashion; or had she and her party decided to wear them as distinctive emblems, for at least one other lady had one stuck rakishly on the side of her head?

The East Lancers Band played a very good programme of sixteen dances, including two Paul Jones. There was a supper interval at midnight. "God Save the King" was played shortly after 2 a.m.

Mr. A. C. Gaffur, who is on the staff of the Hong Kong Electric Co., Ltd., was married last week to Miss Halimah Ali, daughter of Mrs. Kuleum Ali of No. 457, Lockhart Road. Mr. Gaffur is a very keen member of the Indian Division, St. John Ambulance Brigade.

BERLIN VIEWS LOCARNO POWERS' MEMORANDUM WITH DISTASTE

EDEN'S STATEMENT ON NEGOTIATIONS

PROPOSALS FAIR AND REASONABLE

FLANDIN DECLARES RELATIONS WITH BRITAIN STRENGTHENED

London, Yesterday.

The diplomatic and Dominions' galleries were crowded and there was an unusually large attendance in the House of Commons when Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, rose and made a brief statement on the international negotiations in London.

He announced that agreement had been reached with France, Belgium and Italy as regards the proposals which would be submitted to the League Council, whose task of pronouncing whether Germany had unilaterally repudiated the Locarno Treaty was comparatively simple. It was highly desirable that Germany be represented at the grave deliberations and should have the opportunity of stating her case on equal terms before a vote were taken.

He anticipated that the next meeting of the Council would be on Monday, when there would also be a meeting of the Committee of Thirteen to consider the Italian and Abyssinian replies to the proposed peace negotiations.

Although Herr Hitler had expressed his willingness not to increase the Rhineland troops, this was insufficient to enable much progress to be made. Germany has been invited to refer the Franco-Soviet Pact to The Hague Court and it was also proposed, with the assent of the Governments concerned, that an international police force, including detachments of the armies of the guarantor Powers, should be stationed in the narrow zone to the east of the Franco-German and Belgio-German frontiers.

It was likewise proposed that Germany should undertake, during the interim, not to reinforce the troops already sent into the demilitarised zone nor modify the situation by military forces. Germany was being asked not to proceed to fortification, while France and Belgium were undertaking not to send further troops to the frontier zone.

Britain was willing to supply detachments to the international force while reaffirming her Locarno obligations and arranging for contacts between the General Staff of the guarantor Powers and France and Belgium, in order to meet the possibility of unprovoked aggression.

Mr. Eden described the proposals as fair and reasonable. It was very reasonable to ask Germany to make a contribution to the situation which her action had created, particularly in view of the moderation displayed by France and Belgium.

It was proposed that the five signatories to Locarno should negotiate the basis of the several proposals in the German memorandum beside the revision of the Rhineland status and the drafting of mutual assistance pacts open to all the signatories of Locarno. The next stage would be a world conference under the auspices of the League regarding the other German proposals, security, armaments and economic relations. It was proposed that the British and Italian Governments should inform France and Belgium indicating their position in the event of a possible breakdown of the negotiations.

HITLER STANDS FIRM

"Germany Will Not Waver"

Hamburg, Yesterday. "I need the German people behind me in the struggle for equality against the encroachment of others, who again today treat us as unequal," said Herr Hitler in an election speech to 50,000 people at the great Hansa Hall yesterday.

He added: "The world must know that we will never go back a centimetre from our demands for equality. I pity the statesmen who think that German co-operation can be inaugurated by new defamations of Germany." The speech, which was unusually short, made no direct reference to the White Paper. —Reuter.

GERMAN UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES

Berlin, Yesterday. —At the beginning of January the number of unemployed at the German labour offices was still rising slightly. This rise has now come to a standstill, and at the end of last month a decrease of 90,000 was once again registered. —Trans-Ocean Service.

Colette Nicka (left), popular artist's model, was not present when Mardee Hoff (centre) was chosen as the most perfectly shaped woman in America, and she is going to dispute the title at a contest to be held shortly in New York. But they both will get plenty of competition in the form of Rosemary Andree (right), of England, who will vie with them for the title, "World's Shapeliest."

HITLER SPEAKS AT HAMBURG

"GERMANY HAS NO ALTERNATIVE"

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL.

Hamburg, Yesterday. The public opinion of the whole world was taking an interest in the German decline, said the Chancellor, and that was something a mere mortal could only fight against, when he knew that he had the whole nation behind him.

It was for this reason that he asked the nation to vote again, not, he emphasised, to determine the duration of his Government—that had been guaranteed by the Reichstag till the autumn of next year. Apart from that he felt himself secured by the achievements of the Government.

AIRSHIPS ON ATLANTIC

Plans For German Service

RATE SCHEDULE ARRANGED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL.

Berlin, Yesterday. The "Zeppelin-Luftschiffbau Gesellschaft," that is the "Zeppelin Airship Construction Company," has issued the following report: "The regular zeppelin service to South America, which began in 1932, will be greatly enlarged this year. In 1935 the Graf Zeppelin, made 16 trips to South America, covering a total of 220,000 miles, without mishap. This year 22 trips are scheduled, several of which will be undertaken by the new LZ 129, which is now completed.

"This new 'Zeppelin' will first make a few special trips to America between May and October. When the regular South American service begins again at the end of March, the European base will have been transferred to Frankfurt-on-Main, which is more central."

"It is estimated that the LZ 129 will take three days for the outward journey from Frankfurt to Lakehurst and 2½ days for the return after a rest of two days, so that the double journey will take one week.

"The normal fare from Frankfurt to Lakehurst (N. J.) will be about 1,000 Marks ($50 at par), but a surcharge of 250 Marks will be made for the maiden voyage ($12/10). —Trans-Ocean Service.

WOOD-GAS FUEL IN GERMANY

Encouraged By The State

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL.

Berlin, Yesterday. In order to encourage the use of wood-gas for driving motors, the State will continue to grant a subsidy of 600 Reichsmarks for the purchase of a new wood-gas driven car, and a subsidy of 800 Reichsmarks for the adaptation of old cars to the new wood-gas system. Applications have to be made. —Trans-Ocean Service.

DISEASES OF TROPICS

Hamburg Institute Enlarged

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL.

Hamburg, Yesterday. The unique Institute for Tropical Diseases here has had to be enlarged on account of the increasing number of patients from all parts of the world. In 1934 some 394 patients received treatment, but in 1935 the number had risen to 1,258, so that a new wing became necessary. To be opened in May, this will contain three big third-class wards and 20 single and double bed rooms as well as the most modern laboratories for X-Ray, electric and hydro-therapeutic treatment. Outside there is a large garden, a roof garden and terraces overlooking the Elbe.

During 1935 many hundreds of foreign doctors, scientists and students visited this well-known research institute for tropical diseases. —Trans-Ocean Service.

Famine And Disease Threat

PITIFUL SCENES

New York, Yesterday.

The flood waters of the Potomac and other rivers are receding, revealing a catastrophic scene of desolation. The damage is estimated at $300,000,000, of which $100,000,000 is in Western Pennsylvania.

There are pitiful scenes among the ravaged communities, where thousands are stunned at the realization that they have lost everything. Famine and disease are threatening the affected areas. —Reuter.

TOO LIKE TREATY OF VERSAILLES

EARLIER OPTIMISM DISCOUNTED

DETAILS OF WHITE PAPER

London, Yesterday.

The White Paper containing the Locarno Powers' agreement, tabled in Parliament yesterday afternoon, is divided into two parts. The first deals with the measures arising from the infringement of Locarno and the second provides the framework for an ultimate international conference.

The first part, after affirming the infringement, lays down that an agreement shall immediately be concluded between the Locarno General Staffs to arrange provisional measures for mutual assistance. Germany will be invited to abide by The Hague Court decision regarding the Franco-Soviet Pact.

Measures are outlined to maintain order and security, while The Hague is deciding the matter. The measures stipulate:—

- (1) The maintenance of the status quo by the military forces in the Rhineland;
- (2) The maintenance of the status quo by the military in the Rhineland, apart from the Reichswehr;
- (3) The status quo regarding fortifications;
- (4) The despatch of an international force to the east Franco-Belgian frontiers in a 20-kilometre strip of country;
- (5) An international commission will supervise the execution of the measures.

IN EVENT OF AGREEMENT If Germany agrees to the foregoing she will be invited to negotiate on the following basis:—

- (1) The proposals of the Hitler memorandum of March 7, excluding re-entry into the League;
- (2) The revision of the status of the Rhineland;
- (3) A pact of mutual assistance to replace Locarno.

WORLD CONFERENCE? The second part invites a world conference:—

- (1) To organise collective security;
- (2) More exactly to define the obligations and applications of Article XVI of the Covenant;
- (3) The delimitation of armaments;
- (4) To improve economic relations;
- (5) To examine the conditions in which Germany can return to the League, and for the conclusion of an East European Pact.

POSITION AGGRAVATED Berlin, Later: The situation since noon yesterday has been considerably aggravated following a closer perusal of the Locarno Powers' memorandum, said a high official of the Wilhelmstrasse last night. He added that the wording of the document was strongly reminiscent of the Treaty of Versailles. It was certainly not a bridge leading to a great peace plan.

LEAGUE COUNCIL ADJOURNS London: After a brief private meeting the Council yesterday afternoon adjourned until Monday, by which time all the members should have received any necessary instructions from their Governments.

It is learned in authoritative British circles that only a small force is contemplated under the proposed neutral zone for the policing scheme.

ITALIAN ATTITUDE Rome: The Italian Government is studying the proposals relating to the German infringement of Locarno, but its attitude continues to be reserved in view of the Italian policy to take no part in an agreement or joint action in European affairs with the countries applying sanctions. —Reuter's Bulletin Service.

STATESMEN VISIT PALACE The following statesmen in London for the meeting of the League Council visited Buckingham Palace yesterday: M. Paul Boncour, Herr Von Ribbentrop, Mr. Stanley Bruce and the League's Secretary-General, M. Avenol. His Majesty also received in the course of the day the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, and the new Minister for Co-operation of Defence, Sir Thomas Inskip. —British Wireless Service.

LANDING REPULSED

From 8 p.m. the enemy again started tapping at beaches both on the island and the mainland. The first reports were received from coast watches (H.K.V.D.C.) and patrol vessels of enemy ships off Tylam Bay. A faint landing occurred about 8.30 p.m. just west of Red Hill. This landing was easily repulsed by the forward platoon of the Left Sector of the island. The movements of this enemy raiding party from 8.30 were as follows:—

A considerable landing of enemy was effected in Deep Water Bay at about 10 p.m. About one company landed, and by midnight had gained the Wongneichong Gap, but just in time the Island Commander brought up his right sector reserve of H.K.V.D.C. Infantry and by 1.30 a.m. Wongneichong Gap still remained in our hands and the enemy advance had been definitely stopped.

In the meantime enemy destroyers had been pecking at the beaches to the east and west of the island. It is believed that a landing was effected at Sandy Bay, but confirmation of this has not yet been received.

If no other landing takes place on the island during the hours of darkness it is confidently expected that the Island Commander will be able to launch a well-organized and well-supported counter attack after dawn through Wongneichong Gap and drive any remaining enemy back into Deepwater Bay.

EVENTS ON MAINLAND
Events on the mainland during the night up to 1.30 a.m. were as follows:—

On the west a faint landing took place at Gin Drinkers' Bay, and an enemy gunboat appeared off Lanchikok and other points on the west coast, but it is believed that on this flank the enemy's action is intended as a feint only to draw the mainland reserves to the west. Meanwhile a considerable enemy force appeared off Port Shelter at about midnight, and by 12.30 a.m. a landing had been effected south of Hebe Haven and several destroyers were lying close in to the Port Shelter beaches. The situation is still obscure on the Port Shelter sector, but from reports from the coast watches and police patrol craft, it is believed that a determined effort to land a considerable force is being made by the enemy at Port Shelter.

No decision has been reached by the Fortress Commander as to the use of any reserves on the mainland up to the time of going to press, as until it can be definitely determined where the enemy has made his main landing, reserves must be kept in hand. This decision can probably only be taken just before dawn.

Earlier Reports

ENEMY PLANES AND SHIPPING SUFFER HEAVY CASUALTIES

Fortress H.Q. 10.30 a.m., Sat. Operations began at 4 p.m. yesterday by Blue Land forces, who opened their offensive with an intensive air action against the vulnerable points on both the island and mainland, the attack being by high-altitude bombing and by dive bombing. Owing to the low cloud level considerable damage was caused to aircraft by the necessity for low flying, as all vulnerable points are adequately guarded by anti-aircraft Lewis machine-guns. The intensive air action lasted until 9 p.m., when, owing to bad visibility, aircraft attack was made singularly, chiefly on the island.

Owing to the necessity for low flying anti-aircraft searchlights had considerable difficulty in keeping on their targets, but again the aircraft suffered severely from guns and Lewis machine-guns.

NIGHT RAIDS

During the night raids were carried out by enemy ships as follows:—

On Tolo Harbour, when the railway and the vicinity of Ma Niu Shui was damaged, but the mobile troops on the Taiipo road prevented any satisfactory reconnaissance being carried out by the enemy or any extensive damage being done.

The second raid was on Castle Peak Road, in the area of Shan Tsing (the brewery) and resulted in damage to the road bridge. Repairs to the bridge and road are being expeditiously carried out by the Public Works Department. The Castle Peak mobile troops sighted the enemy before they could land, and a reserve force from mainland headquarters was rushed in in buses before they could secure a landing or any damage could be effected.

HARBOUR ATTACKS FAIL
The enemy also attempted to enter Hong Kong Harbour by the eastern and western entrances. Fortress Headquarters, however, received ample warning of enemy shipping approaching the shores of the New Territories and of the island, and, owing to the alertness of the naval and police close-watching organisation, the fixed defence (lights and guns) received ample warning and engaged the ships well before their approach to our minefields. The only results achieved by the harbour attacks were that a few of the mines were cleared, but intensive damage was done to enemy shipping.

It is anticipated that the enemy, after their reconnaissance raids of the night of March 20-21, will attack in force to-night, but it is confidently expected that with the help of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps, which will then be in action, an attack either on the New Territories or on the island will be repulsed.

Enemy Planes Break Through

Fortress H.Q., 4.15 p.m., Sat. Aeroplanes were reported at about 2.30 p.m. to be reconnoitring the area between Tide Bay and Tolo Harbour, on the mainland, and it is anticipated that they are endeavouring to determine the whereabouts of the defence troops.

Aeroplanes also carried out high altitude and dive bombing with "two ounce" four bags, scoring hits and doing extensive damage to vulnerable points on the island and mainland, including the R.M.S. Empress of Britain, shipping, the Cosmopolitan Dock, the Naval Yard, the Star and Vehicular Ferries and other important points.

CATERING FOR VOLUNTEERS

The Volunteer Forces were catered for in traditional style last night, a lorry laden with three large soup tureens, which, however, contained hot tea, three large baskets with Cornish pastries and sandwiches, and chaffies for heating the tea visiting the three vantage points in the Right and Left Sectors from Pokfulam to the junction of the island and Shek-O Roads, where headquarters were situated.

Owing to the number of curves in the route and the ups-and-downs, most of the tea was spilt before reaching the respective destinations, but there was sufficient to go round, and practically everybody was catered for.

His Excellency the General Officer Commanding the Troops in China, Major General A. W. Bartholomew, accompanied by his Staff officers, was seen at Deep Water Bay in concourse with the Official Umpires at about 11 p.m., while the steel-helmeted Blue Land forces were seen for a long stretch along the Island Road.

The Intelligence Staff of the attacking force are credited with having effected a successful landing dressed as Chinese fishermen with ground sheets. Several of these men were seen walking along the side of the Island Road from Deep Water Bay to Repulse Bay.

Patrols (defending) were posted at intervals along the main route of the manoeuvre area and all vehicles were stopped and examined before being allowed to pass.

Coming towards Victoria via Shaikwan, one's eyes were immediately caught by a blaze of crimson searchlights, which swept Lyemun Pass and the surrounding waterways, almost making it possible to pick out objects on both sides of the entrance with the naked eye.

Our photographs show how some of the Empress of Britain tourists enjoy their leisure moments afloat and ashore. Upper left shows Mr. and Mrs. David B. Dearborn, of New York, ready for their slide down the mountain at Madeira, while in the upper right picture the Hon. G. Howard and Mrs. Ferguson, of Toronto, Canada, are seen preparing for their experience of the "carrinho-de-monte" in the same port. Mr. Ferguson was formerly Premier of Ontario and recently resigned from the position of Canadian High Commissioner for Great Britain. The two bottom photographs show (left) Commander C. T. H. Bradshaw, with his wife and son, enjoying the sea-breezes aboard the liner, and (right) a happy party at Durban, including (left to right) Mr. Fred Smit, Jr., and Miss Loretta Smit, of Chicago, and Mr. Terence J. Dillon, of Hollywood.

Jacob Paley (above), self-described "junk dealer" of New York, told the Senate Munitions Committee at Washington, D.C., that he paid as little as 12 cents each for old army machine guns. The Committee thereupon voted a bill that would drastically curb all arms sales.

HOME VISIT TO HITLER

Skating Champion Interviewed

FUEHRER SAID TO BE "AWFULLY NICE"

Garmisch-Partenkirchen. Miss Sonja Henie, the world's skating champion, recently issued a denial of reports that she indulged in an outburst of tears after skating in the Olympic Winter Games Championship here, when she was adjudged to be only 3.6 points in front of Miss Cecilia Colledge, the 15-year-old English champion.

"She said that she had shed no tears. She also suggested that there would be no need for tears, as she still thinks she will retain her title.

"I said and did nothing out of the ordinary yesterday," she said. "Why should I? I have no reason to be dissatisfied. I am landing it only by 3.6 points. But that does not matter so much. It is the placing which counts, not the points.

A Tribute

"Miss Colledge is challenging me seriously, but I have skated against her several times before, and won.

"She is a beautiful skater. I think she will certainly be second. "To-morrow I think I have a very good chance.

"I shall wear a violet dress and white boots and of course, my usual pair of skates—I never put on a new pair for a championship. It is horrid skating on a new edge. "I have been practising here this morning and the ice is perfect. The surface is beautifully hard and smooth.

"After the competition yesterday I saw Herr Hitler. He said he was so sorry he had not seen me skate, but he had been watching another event.

Fuehrer's Photograph

"After an exhibition in Munich recently he invited me to stay with him at his home in Berchtesgaden. "I went there with my family a fortnight ago and had a fine time.

TOURISTS AT PENINSULA

There was a large crowd at the Peninsula Hotel last night, over 200 people attending the dinner-dance. Included amongst the guests were a number of passengers off the Empress of Britain, and they helped in no small manner to make the dance one of the most enjoyable held in the hotel this year.

ANOTHER CHINESE BAZAAR

Where Is The Trade Depression Now?

It is only during the Chinese New Year week that one sees a Chinese bazaar in full swing, but the arrival of the Empress of Britain in port was the signal for another of these very attractive affairs to be got up, though this one is featured chiefly by the abundance of curios and silk goods.

Navy Street, that very little used thoroughfare near the Kowloon Godowns, has been transformed into a veritable hive of activity, for along its entire length one comes across a number of stalls, all vying with one another in the very rare curios and antiques on display.

An the customers? This section is made up of the tourists from the Empress of Britain, and it does one good to see their "good-natured buying"! At a late hour last night, a Sunday Herald representative took a stroll along Navy Street and there he saw so much business being done that he forgot, for the moment, that the Colony was in the very trough of an economic depression!

SLAUGHTERING OF ANIMALS

Jewish Monopoly Abolished

ACTION TAKEN IN POLAND

Warsaw, Yesterday.

After a lively debate and prolonged negotiations between the various parties, the much-discussed bill abolishing the Jewish monopoly of slaughtering all animals for human consumption, other than pigs, in accordance with the ancient Jewish ritual, passed its second and third readings in the Sejm late last evening in the face of strenuous Jewish opposition.

The bill, which was introduced by the Deputy Marshal of the Polish Senate, provides that the ritual slaughtering will henceforth be restricted to animals destined for Jewish consumption.

This automatically puts an end to the Jewish control of the slaughtering industry in Poland and to the impossible conditions arising therefrom, it having hitherto been customary for Jewish meat-dealers to sell foreparts of the slaughtered animals only to the Jewish population and the hind parts to Christians, who were thus not only compelled to eat "kosher" and inferior meat but also to pay a tax to the Jews, who derived enormous profits from the slaughtering monopoly. — Trans-Ocean Service.

THE POLICEMAN CROUCHED

He Did Not Chase Robbers

For not attacking and giving chase to three peasants who fired at him and his men, a police sergeant has been arrested at Cadiz and put in prison. He has been placed in prison in the same cell as his assailants.

The charges against him is one of negligence in that he did not give chase to his aggressors

MIDDLE SCHOOL IN CANTON

Students Return To Studies

MATTERS CLEARED UP

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

General Chen Chi-tang, Headmaster of Chungshan Middle School, has ordered the immediate repair of window-panes and other broken furniture and apparatus of the school, which were recently destroyed by the students as a protest against severing the school from Sun Yat-sen University.

Students are required to report for duty on March 23, and failure to do so means expulsion or other punishment. Most of them have returned to classes, after an assurance that there is no change of the curriculum and that they can be matriculated to the University as before.

When General Chen took over the school, it was renamed the Model School. The students did not like the name, as their institution was a part of Sun Yat-sen University founded in memory of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Then at the suggestion of Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen and Chancellor Chou Lou, the middle school was renamed for the second time as Chungshan Middle School, Chungshan being the courtesy name of Dr. Sun.

The student trouble arose purely on the initiative of the students, and was not due to the influence of any outsiders.

EXTRADITION SOUGHT FOR

But France Will Decline

NO LEGAL PROVISIONS IN KASSEL CASE

Paris. Maître Jean Charles Legrand, the famous French lawyer, said recently that the French authorities will try to keep Roger Vernon in France.

Vernon, known also as Charles Lacroix, is the man who was arrested in Paris after the murder of Max Kassel at St. Albans. Maître Legrand will defend him.

A Note from the British Government was delivered at the French Foreign Office last month requesting the extradition of Vernon for trial in England. The Note added that if the French Government could not extradite Vernon and the woman arrested with him, Suzanne Baudouin, they should be tried in France.

"No Possibility"
Maître Legrand said: "I still see no possibility of extradition for Vernon or Baudouin. "It has been proved that the man is French. The law unquestionably prevents the extradition of a French subject to another country in such circumstances.

"If the French Government created a precedent and took steps to arrange for his extradition Vernon would have no power to resist. "Next week I shall probably go to London. I wish to conduct the defence with first-hand information."

DROP IN OIL PRICE?

Sir H. Deterding's Prediction

Panama.—Sir Henri Deterding, Director-general of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company, who was paying a visit to Panama in cognito, predicted a drop in oil prices in an interview with Reuters.

Asked what he thought of oil prices, he replied, "They are going to have a big drop soon."

He refused to make any comment on the Standard Oil Company's competition.

Sir Henri was travelling in the liner Cordillera under the name of Henry Muller.

He remarked jokingly in the interview that he left Plymouth without being recognized.

(By PHILIP RUBY)

IN old China the people were classified into four great classes—the literati, the farmers, the labourers and the merchants. The literati were first. Next came the country of the world has ever known the learned so greatly. He was a man of thought and action, and he had enjoyed it in China and in other lands. Said Mencius: "The ruler and the labourer with their hands govern; the others; for a small portion of the governing class in China were scholars. It was said that they commanded the people, that they were the Pope; the Pope; the Pope; that the fate of the nation depended upon the learned and that without them the nation would collapse.

Wen Ch'ang. Kuai Hsing is a native person with the face of a devil. This little distributor of literary degrees, invoked in order to obtain success at the competitive examinations, is a rather pathetic figure. In life he was a deformed and ugly scholar, and he was physically as he was mentally. As first candidate at the metropolitan examination he was to receive from the emperor's own hand a robe of gold, but the monarch turned away from such ugliness and refused to give it. That was the unhappy scholar's fight. In despair Kuai went and threw himself into the sea. But as he was about to sink a sea monster raised him up on his back and brought him to the surface.

Respect For Learning

Along with this respect for the literati went a respect for literature and the words of the sages;
And the scholars had this supreme power among men; they alone could understand and interpret the sayings of the sages, and through them the great truths could be passed down from the present and then again from past to future.

... Chu Yü had consecrated his life to

There is a quaint legend about Chu Yi that resulted in his becoming a protector of weak candidates. The story goes that an examiner had put a certain essay aside as inferior when by some mysterious power it was replaced before his eyes and an old man clad in a long red robe, appeared before him nodding his head and giving the examiner to understand that the essay should be passed. Hence the popular saying "Pe- haps Mr. Redcoat will nod his head" with which a poor scholar's friends attempt to encourage him on the eve of an examination.

China Chia is another who has charge of the interests of scholars, but there are times when he carries a sword—the terror of the wicked. At other times he carries a flag and this is regarded as good omen. He waves his flag to the homes of those who win literary honours, to warn families that their son or one among their descendants will be promoted to high office in the State.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 199.

ON the afternoon of Saturday March 14 we walked a short distance along the path by the side of the catchwater which collects the rain that falls on the N.W. side of the Lion Rock and adjacent hills and conducts it into the Kowloon reservoir. An hour only was at our disposal and the idea was to make a list of the birds seen in this length of time. Though many birds were heard, few were seen and when our list contained the names of three birds, Grey Wagtail, Tit and Chinese Bulbul, I registered a complaint: "How can I write a column about three birds? This district is no scently. I caught a glimpse of the front view of the head and neck only of a bulbul-like bird. The colours, white throat and chestnut on the sides of the head, were quite unfamiliar and I called out: "A new species!" After much patient watching, during which tantalising glimpses were obtained, we noticed that the crown of the bird was black (certainly very dark) and the back chestnut, the lower parts being grayish with the throat whiter. A suspicion of a crest was noted.

Reference to Caldwell's "South China Birds" and to La Touche's "Birds of Eastern China" showed that the species without doubt is Almost as soon as I had finished speaking a familiar sound was heard, the call of the White-headed Black Bulbul. Presently several of these were seen, all, curiously enough, blackheaded individuals, and many more were heard. The flocks of these birds which came to Pokfulam district in the middle of January left at the end of February and we naturally thought that they had migrated north. We were pleased to see these curious birds again; their feet and bill are coral-red; in the adult the head is white, whilst the rest of the plumage is black. Immature birds and females have black heads or heads evenly streaked black and white.

Chestnut

The Chestnut-backed, Chestnut-crested, or Fukiien Chestnut Bulbul as it is variously known, Hemitus costanotus canipennis Seaborn—This species has never, to my knowledge, been recorded before from the Colony. It is resident in Fukiien and in N. Kwangtung, common in the hills, and mountains but only in wooded country. "The general habits of this bird ally it fully as much with the flycatchers as with the bulbuls"—which we noticed and remarked on when we observed the birds. Caldwell's recognition marks are the "rich black of the crown, with tendency to a crest when the bird is alarmed, and the rich chestnut of the entire upper parts." La

The Chestnut-backed Bulbul Before we saw and heard these black scaricrows we had heard a flock of birds making a terrific din down to the valley below. The sounds were reminiscent of bul-whistles but some of the notes were unfamiliar, including a high pipe-like note almost like the call of a frog. Shortly after we had passed the black bulbuls another flock of the noisy birds was heard in the trees on the steep bank above the conduit. At the time we did not think that the noise came from a species unfamiliar to us but, as we wished to add another bird to our meagre list of four, we looked carefully. Pre-tion and had the title of Hero of Marvellous Wisdom conferred on him by the Emperor. But when the Empress Wu seized the throne he fled to the mountains and there studied the mysteries of alchemy and the elixir of life, all the while living on air only. At last, invested with supernatural power, he took up magic weapons and slew dragons and "rid the earth of divers kinds of evils for upwards of four hundred years." Sometimes he is shown bearing a male child in his arms, indicating a promise that the offspring of his devotees shall grow up to be scholars of renown.

in Little Hong Kong. Chloropsis, large bulbuls. And now two quite rare flocks of Chestnut-backed Bulbuls have been heard and second seen, in part, near the Kowloon reservoir. The cause may either the cold winter in the North having driven bulbuls (and robins) further south than usual, greater skill on the part of taxidermists and bird-watchers! This latter explanation is of doubtful value; I am inclined to think that the increase in woodland is a factor while though it cannot induce birds to come, may, let us hope, induce them to stay.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Importance Of Little Trumps

(By Lieut.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

THAT onlookers see most of the game is a very old adage, and this appears especially true when one is a spectator of a game of Contract.

How often does one find that partners have bid the hand perfectly correctly and found the best contract for the combined hands, yet fail in the play of the hand to make the best use of the available material?

Game contracts in a suit seem to present difficulties, and frequently the small trumps are not utilised to the best advantage. These little trumps are extremely important and can be made use of in three different ways:

(a) In dummy's hand for ruffing losing tricks in a side-suit held by the declarer;

(b) Also as "ruffera" against a strong side-suit held by the opponents; and

(c) As entry cards which enable you to make any necessary finesse or carry out a "squeeze" or "end" play.

When you are planning to play a hand in a suit declaration, you have to make up your mind, after seeing your dummy, whether it will pay you to commence by drawing out trumps or whether it would be advisable to utilise the trumps in one or possibly both hands for ruffing purposes.

Care Needed
Hands which need careful handling are those where the declarer holds two long suits, each of at least five cards, one of which is the trump suit, and he finds that his dummy is short in his side-suit.

When this is the situation, it would certainly appear at first sight to be advisable to attempt to establish the side-suit by utilising dummy's trumps to ruff any losing tricks in that suit.

There is, of course, a risk attached to this line of play. Bear in mind that when you have an unbalanced hand of the two-suit type you frequently find that the opponents also have hands of an unbalanced type, and that one or the other of them may be strong in the two suits which the declarer holds.

You must therefore plan your play to guard against this possibility.

For example, consider the following hands:

S. 8 7 3	N. S. K J 10 6 2
H. 10 8 6	W. E. H. Q J 4 2
D. 8 2	S. D. J
C. A 10 9 8 4	C. K J 3
S. Q 9 5	H. A K 9 5 3
H. 7	D. A K 10 9 7
D. Q 5 4 3	C. 6
C. Q 7 5 2

The idea, therefore, that any British force, cribbed, cabined and confined on sufferance in a patch of sand in the Canal zone, could be of any real value for the defence of the Canal was only less absurd than the notion that such a force could in sudden emergency be of any real value for the defence of Egypt herself.

The Egyptian Army
But if these facts have now, of course, become evident to all unbiased thinkers on both sides, other things have also become clear.

An important one amongst these is the realisation that the time has now arrived when it would be of advantage both to Egypt and Great Britain to have the co-operation and assistance of a modernised and expanded Egyptian army, mobilised for the common defence of the mutual interests of both powers.

The two allied military forces, working in intimate and friendly co-operation one with the other, could not fail to provide a very powerful factor of sobriety and order in a corner of the Eastern Mediterranean where stability is as sorely needed as it often threatens to be lacking.

From that stability, once established, and from that confidence, once achieved, much else must naturally flow.

Military Alliance
What has been the rock on which have been wrecked all attempts to modify the Capitulatory system? Even Lord Cromer, the most powerful of all British pro-consuls in Egypt, who incessantly laboured for the abolition of the Capitulations and who so confidently believed that the Morocco Agreement was going to crown his long labours in that respect; even he failed because the uncertainty of British military tenure deprived foreign nations of that alternative guarantee of security without which they were compelled to cling only more and more tenaciously to their Capitulatory rights.

Clearly a permanent military alliance would go far to solve something more than a mere military problem, and do more to pave the urgent way to Egypt's legitimate aspirations than all the tedious and tragic treaty-making of the past.

Some such break in the cloud of past failure seems very viable today, and every friend of Egypt, everyone who realises how easily past Egyptian difficulty might be turned to warm Egyptian friendship, must hope that the opportunity may be taken.

In the betrayal, however, of the rightful and essential claims—and duties—of Great Britain in the Nile Valley there can be no hope of any settlement. Too much, not only on our side, but on Egypt's, is at stake.

Desirable as a settlement is, no settlement is still better than a bad settlement, as to-day's events in relation to past negotiation so conclusively have proved.

And if, by ill chance, a permanent settlement is not destined yet to be, we must resignedly but composedly remember the famous dictum of the French statesman who said—and must almost surely have said of Egypt—"Ce n'est que le provisoire qui dure!"

SCOTS WOODEN-SPOONISTS FOR THE SEASON

London, Yesterday.
A crowd of 60,000 saw England beat Scotland by 9 points to 8 in the Calcutta Cup Rugby match at Twickenham this afternoon.

Scotland are thus wooden-spoonists in the international competition for the first time in many seasons, and England are on level terms in the complete series of 58 matches between the two countries.

Brilliant weather favoured the match and only one change was made in the teams, Barrie replacing Cooper in the Scottish pack, the latter suffering from water on the knee.

In the second minute of the game, after a fine run by Sever, Bolton went over for an unconverted try to give England the lead. Three minutes later, however, Fyfe kicked a glorious penalty goal from the half-way line, following midfield play.

CRANMER'S FINE TRY

Sever then missed an easy penalty kick, but, nothing daunted, England went ahead when 18 minutes after the start Cranmer sold the dummy and went over for a glorious unconverted try. Little less than four minutes later Cranmer increased England's lead when he dribbled through and, punting ahead, raced three Scottish defenders for the touch down. His effort, however, was not converted.

Scotland then retaliated and, after 41 minutes' play, Fyfe caught the English defence on the wrong foot, and punted ahead for Shaw to catch Owen Smith on the wrong foot and go over for a try which Fyfe converted from a very difficult angle.

Half time arrived with England leading by 9 points to 8.

PIERCED STRUGGLE

A fierce battle took place on the resumption, marking the encounter as one of the most exciting of the year. Both Lind and Cranmer missed chances of dropping goals. Candler defended superbly, checking the strong Scottish attacks, while Prince Obolensky, hero of the England match against the All Blacks, was carefully watched and consequently never had any chances, although he made two great runs during the game.

England attacked strongly until the finish. Owen Smith, the South African Test cricketer, narrowly missing the posts with a long left-footed drop kick. The final whistle blew soon after to give England their first win of the season, and by a solitary point.

FIVE CHANGES IN PACK

Five alterations were made in the England pack following the debacle at Dublin, but Toft, of Lancashire, was the only new "cap."

England: H. G. Owen Smith; Prince Obolensky, R. A. Gerrard, P. Cranmer and H. S. Bever; P. Candler and B. C. Candler (capt.); Dickie Toft, Longland, Dunlop, Webb, Weston, Brook and Bolton.

Scotland: Kerr, Shaw, Lind, Dick and Fyfe; C. F. Grievie and Logan; B. M. Grievie, Cotterill, Dratt, Bowden, Dunnett, Barrie, Wares and Weston. Wales won the Rugby International series last Saturday when they defeated Ireland by a penalty.

This view of the ill-fated ship Stefannos Costomienis, from which a crew of 80 was taken ashore, showed the high seas in a sinking condition 280 miles south-east of the Nantucket Lightship, shows the freighter as she weathered a terrific storm off the Straits of Magellan in 1933. The steamer City of Newport News effected the rescue of the crew in response to radio calls for help.

The decision to invite Germany to submit her case against the Franco-Soviet Pact at The Hague Court is understood to mean that reference to the Court is not an indispensable condition of the negotiations for a Rhineland settlement.

GERMAN REPLY AWAITED

London: The German reply is not expected before to-morrow night. League circles believe that it will leave the door open for negotiations. Meanwhile Herr von Ribbentrop, leader of the German delegation, is flying to Berlin to-day to consult Herr Hitler, who has returned from Hamburg to Berlin for a conference with his chief assistants.

FLANDIN APPLAUDED

Paris: M. Flandin's speech in the Chamber is well received and all the newspapers are pleased at the results of French diplomacy in the past few days.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

SINO-JAPANESE RELATIONS

THREE-POINT PROGRAMME ACCEPTED?

Canton, Yesterday.
Sino-Japanese understanding has been reached as a result of the parley between Foreign Minister Chang Chun and Ambassador Hachiro Arita on the basis of the three-point programme of Premier Hirota, according to a Shanghai dispatch received to-day by a high Government office here.

"No further formal negotiations will be necessary," the dispatch added. "Foreign circles believe that the Nanking communique is a mere smokescreen to cover the actual situation."

The same dispatch stated that after holding a conference of Japanese Consuls in Shanghai Ambassador Arita will go to Tientsin to see Major-General Haya Tada, commanding the Japanese troops in North China. Then Ambassador Arita will return to Tokyo.

In view of the new understanding between Nanking and Tokyo, Japan has agreed to check the autonomous movement in Fukien, which is stirred up mostly by Japanese ronins and Formosan riff-raff. This account is confirmed by a Nanking official news agency.

While the first mentioned dispatch cannot yet be substantiated, there will be increasing friendliness between China and Japan.

The "Association of Abyssinian Patriots" to-day sent telegrams to all the international women's organisations as well as to the world's peace societies, protesting anew against the alleged employment of poison gas bombs by the Italian air force. The telegrams point out that the victims of these poison gas attacks are mostly civilians, and urgently request that measures be taken to compel Italy to comply with the provisions of the international agreement prohibiting the use of poison gas in

It is generally assumed that the German Government will not meet the proposals with a blank refusal. That part of the plan which deals with the arrangements for the interim period until a new settlement in the West is achieved, contains proposals for holding the situation, but it is understood that if the German objections to a unilateral zone were found to be the sole obstacle to agreement alternative German proposals would be readily considered.

PRESERVING CONFIDENCE

It is, however, felt that it will not be possible to proceed with the long-range policy envisaged in the four-Power programme unless adequate provisions for preserving confidence during the interim period are adopted by Germany no less than by the four other Governments concerned.

With reference to the decision to invite the German Government to lay their case against the Franco-Soviet Pact before the International Court without prejudice to the operation of the paragraph which provides for negotiations for revision of the status of the Rhineland, this is clearly understood to mean that reference to the Court is not an indispensable condition of the negotiations for a Rhineland settlement.

The next meeting of the League of Nations Council, at which the text of the four-Power agreement will again be before the members, is fixed for Monday, and it is stated that the probable procedure will be to refer the matter to a committee with a rapporteur to examine the various proposals it contains.

TUESDAY'S COMMONS DEBATE

Unless developments meanwhile are considered to have rendered such a course inadvisable there will be debate in the House of Commons on foreign policy with particular reference to the Rhineland problem, on Tuesday.—British Wireless Service.
